SPAIN'S LOYALIST CHIEFS FLEE

DEMAND TRUTH ON SECRET U.S. WAR COMPACTS

Call for Transcript of Testimony.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 5.—[Special.]—The affair of President Roosevelt's secret aircraft deal with France took a more sensational turn today.

Secretary Henry Morgenthau Jr.

Members of the senate committee on military affairs have started an investigation, it transpired, to determine whether the testimony of government officials on the action of the President in making the new Douglas bomber available to the French government in advance of submission to the United States war department has been falsified.

Suspicions were aroused by the protracted delay in the printing of the secret testimony of Gen. Malin Craig, army chief of staf; Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring, and other officials before the senate committee.

No Copies Available.

It is customary to circulate the typewritten record of testimony among committee members and witnesses for corrections of errors. Although this testimony was taken two weeks ago, committee members have yet to be furnished with a transcript.

Reports have been current that the testimony of administration witnesses, particularly that of Secretary Morgenthau, is being revised in important particulars. Efforts to reach Mr. Morgenthau with an inquiry tonight were unavailing.

According to the testimony the French government, when the American army officials refused permission to inspect the bomber with its secret army equipment, enlisted the aid of William Bullitt, American ambassador to France, who in turn enlisted the aid of Secretary Morgenthau in inducing the President to overrule the army high command.

Can't Understand Delay.

Some senators jumped to the conclusion that the rôle of Morgenthau in the episode was that of keeper of the 2 billion dollar stabilization fund which is employed to maintain exchange relations of the dollar, franc, and pound. They suspected that the 2 billion dollar fund was being used to help the French buy American military airplanes. Mr. Morgenthau, however, comprehensively denied this.

Members of the senate committee said tonight that they are at a loss of understanding the delay in printing the testimony. Although he was the principal interrogator of the administration officials before the committee, Senator Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.] said he is yet to receive the transcript for correction. He declined to discuss the reports of falsification of the record, but asserted that he would insist upon the production of the unrevised testimony.

Foreign Policy Under Fire.

Reports that the American army plane detector for anti-aircraft defense, possibly the most valuable American defense secret, has been sold to Great Britain, were emphatically denied. What has been made available to Great Britain, it was explained, is the universal director for anti-aircraft guns. This is a device which automatically fires a battery of four anti-aircraft guns simultaneously at an enemy plane on the calculation of its height, speed, and range. The director was invented by the British but improved by Americans.

The President's foreign policy and particularly his alleged statement at the secret White House conference that our first line of defense lies in France will figure prominently in the debate on the national defense program which will begin this week in the house. The President denied the statement attributed to him, but senators present insist he made it.

Committee indorsement of the President's plan to augment the air, land, and sea defenses of the nation is expected without vital changes.

FARMERS STORM AGAINST LAND SEIZURE BY U. S.

800 Families Ordered to Give Up Homes.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Marion, Ill., Feb. 5.—[Special.]—Relentlessly the federal government is moving to force a mass exodus from the Egypt of southern Illinois.

Eight hundred farm families, comprising 5,000 individuals, have been notified—or soon will be notified—that the government wants their lands and will take them virtually at its own price through condemnation proceedings.

The farms will be swallowed by the shallow waters of Crab Orchard lake. The entire project is estimated to cost $2,500,000 and is being built with WPA labor.

A dam 3,000 feet long already has been constructed. Only the finishing touches remain to be applied. This barrier already has backed up water for nearly two miles. Only a few days ago it poured a torrent over route 13, the main highway between Carbondale and Marion.

Residents Scoff at Claims.

Congressman Kent E. Keller sponsored the project originally as a rural resettlement measure, on the ground that much of the land involved is almost worthless. He told grumbling constituents the project would breathe the breath of industrial life into the Illinois coal field, making it comparable to the Ruhr industrial valley in Germany.

The resettlement idea was abandoned when farmers protested that they didn't want to be resettled. The project then was promoted as a reforestation idea, although the first act of the WPA crews was to cut down trees; and next as a flood control measure, although farmers in the area say more land will be flooded by the artificial lake than ever was flooded by nature. Finally it was advocated as a fish preserve and a pleasure resort project, although folks who live in the area say the mudcat is the only fish that will be encouraged.

Forced Out of Area.

The apparent social consequences of this experiment in governmental interference with normal life are astonishing. Investigation indicates that the majority of those dispossessed will move out of Williamson and Jackson counties. They do not know where they will go.

Many maintain they cannot purchase comparable lands and homes for 50 per cent more than the government grants them for their properties. They call the land seizure pure confiscation. A frequent complaint is: "Hitler or Mussolini couldn't do any more than this."

In a petition which they have drawn up, to be sent to Acting Governor John Stelle, the farmers relate that Williamson county will lose the taxes on 56,000 acres—or one-fourth of its taxable lands. Three-fifths of Carterville township high school district, with bonds of $80,000 outstanding, will be inundated and the bonds rendered worthless, they assert.

50 Join in Court Attack.

The protesting farmers have not given up their fight to halt the lake project. Fifty or more are engaged in litigation to halt the condemnations.

State Senator R. G. Crisenberry and State Representatives M. F. Browner and Jack Palmer have introduced in the legislature a resolution calling on the state "to take and use said lands" if there is a necessity for seizure, rather than to let the government carry on its project.

The petition to Mr. Stelle requests that the attorney general be instructed to take all legal steps necessary to halt the federal condemnations.

The farmers deny their court fight is designed to force a higher price for their lands. Their attorney, Frank E. Trobaugh of West Frankfort, insists they do not wish to sell at any price.

On Land for Generations.

"Many of these people," he said, "are on farms that have been in their families for a hundred years or more. They are solid, substantial citi-

Teacher Union Faces Ouster Over Red Rule

Miami, Fla., Feb. 5.—[Special.]—The American Federation of Labor today threatened to oust its teachers' union affiliate unless the teachers clean their house of communism.

Matthew Woll.

The warning came from the A. F. of L. executive council. Matthew Woll of New York, an A. F. of L. vice president and member of the council, upheld the recent action of the New York City Central Trades and Labor council in suspending two teachers' union locals for subversive activities.

Cites Repeated Warnings.

"It is a growing belief in some quarters," Woll said, "that the A. F. of L. may be required to disassociate itself from the American Federation of Teachers unless that body cleans its house of communists.

"Since 1936 William Green, president of the A. F. of L., has repeatedly warned officials of the federation of teachers not to trafic with the communists if they wished to stay in the A. F. of L. Instead of heeding this appeal, they have steadily become worse, and the communist leaders have become more bold."

If the teachers' union were dropped from the A. F. of L., Woll explained, a new union would be set up for the affiliation of teacher groups which he said were discouraged and disgusted with the un-American tenets of communist leaders in the union.

Teachers Quit Union.

Four prominent faculty members at Columbia university resigned from the American Federation of Teachers after it was revealed that communists dictated the policies of the union's New York locals. Two locals —No. 537, the college teachers' union, and No. 453, the WPA teachers' union—were suspended by the Central Trades and Labor council [A. F. of L.] on Jan. 19. Their representatives admitted coöperating on WPA matters with communist organizations and taking part in a communist demonstration for Americans who fought for the loyalists in the Spanish war.

The A. F. of L. executive council also backed congressional investigation of un-American activities and adopted a resolution urging an adequate appropriation to carry on the work of the committee, which is headed by Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.].

Another resolution urged a new investigation of organized movements to promote anti-labor legislation by state and municipal referenda. The council declared that this campaign was being carried on secretly by employer agencies under misleading names and designations.

BABY GAINS 6 OUNCES ON EYE DROPPER DIET OF MOTHER'S MILK

New York, Feb. 5.—[Special.]—A son, weighing 28 ounces was born last Thursday to Mrs. Helen Hennigan, 27 years old, of Brooklyn. He still was alive today and has gained six ounces since birth. He was swathed in cotton and placed in an incubator immediately after birth and is fed mother's milk and stimulants from an eye dropper every two hours.

MAID'S WHISPER TRAPS PAROLEE IN A BURGLARY

A burglar captured through the cooperation of an alert maid and four Wilmette policemen was identified last night as Joseph MacKay, 26 years old, a paroled convict from California state prison at San Quentin.

Sergt. Joseph Steffens and Policemen Matthew Schwall, John Hendrickson, and Cullen Branscom were preparing to go home early yesterday morning when they got a call from Miss Naomi Dove, colored, maid in the home of S. E. Wherry, 100 Woodbine avenue, Wilmette.

"Some one's trying to get in the back door," she whispered over the wire. The policemen sped to the Wherry home in the Schwall's car and captured MacKay as he worked on the door with burglar tools. He said he lived at 1222 North Clark street.

Low Water Puts Mexico City on Electric Saving Time

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Mexico City and outlying suburbs will go on "electric saving time" at one minute past midnight tonight, when clocks will be advanced an hour because of a water power shortage. This form of daylight saving is expected to last until the May rainy season begins.

Breaks a Hip and Then His Record Thirst

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 5.—(AP)—For ten years Julian Gough drank as much as three gallons of lemonade, milk, water or iced tea every day. He had to—a rare disease made him crave liquids, anything that was wet and cold.

Gough's thirst left him all tired out at the end of the day. A physician said he had a type of diabetes and gave him a prescription. When the medicine didn't work the disease was rediagnosed as appendicitis and various other things. Through it all Gough's thirst never left him.

One day he slipped on a rug in his home and was brought to Research hospital. An X-ray showed a broken hip. It showed, too, that Gough's bones were sort of moth eaten in appearance.

Find Trouble in Glands.

This led doctors to believe his system was not producing enough calcium to supply his bones. After looking up records they decided he was suffering from hyperparathyroidism, enlargement of the parathyroid glands, which lie next to the thyroid glands in the neck.

What caused it was a lack of vitamin D in Gough's diet. Vitamin D helps the parathyroid glands in one of their functions—to help the body make use of calcium salts.

Lack of the vitamin made the glands work overtime, with the result that for a while too much calcium was produced. The calcium excess caused dehydration, or loss of moisture, and that made Gough's bones spongy. And his constant thirst was due to dehydration.

Still He Craves Water.

The doctors changed his diet so that he was getting more vitamin D and they cut out part of his parathyroid glands. He got better right away and in two months went home.

Pretty soon, though, the trouble came back. He began to crave a quart of water every day when he got up and another quart soon after. He went back to the hospital for another operation.

Now he's going around without any parathyroid glands at all, but his bones are sound again and he hardly ever lingers at a drinking fountain.

Fight to Save 81 Trapped in Japanese Ship

TOKIO, Feb. 6 [Monday].—(AP)—The Japanese admiralty announced today that six members of the crew of the submarine I-63, which went down in Bungo channel Thursday morning, had been rescued.

Arrow shows where submarine sank after collision.

The fate of the 81 sailors and officers, who have been at the bottom of the sea for nearly five days, remained unknown. The admiralty said rescue operations were continuing.

In 330 Feet of Water.

The I-63 sank in a channel where the water's depth averages 330 feet after a collision with another submarine during maneuvers.

Bungo channel is between the Japanese islands of Kiushu and Shikoku, 400 miles southwest of Tokio.

Rescue operations were begun immediately after the I-63 sank on Thursday morning. At that time the admiralty announced that forty men were probably aboard, refraining from giving the exact number.

The admiralty on Saturday gave no news of rescue attempts and it was indicated information would be released after success or failure of salvage efforts.

One of Japan's Finest Subs.

The I-63, built in 1928, was one of Japan's finest submarines. She was one of the twelve of the Kaigun type. She had a tonnage of 1,635 displacement, with a cruising range capable of taking her across the Pacific to the United States and back without refueling. Two Diesel engines drove her at a speed of nineteen knots on the surface and nine knots when submerged. The vessel was 331 feet long and carried eight 2 inch torpedo tubes.

A sister ship, the I-55, was badly damaged by a typhoon in July, 1936.

Previous Japanese submarine disasters include the foundering of a craft Aug. 21, 1923, beside a dock at Kobe, with eighty-five dead, and the sinking of another in a collision with a Japanese battleship on March 19, 1924, with a loss of forty-nine lives.

PRESIDENT AND CABINET SEEK HAVEN IN FRANCE

Routed Army Also Crosses Border.

PERPIGNAN, France, Feb. 6 [Monday].—(AP)—The Spanish government and its fleeing army today abandoned Catalonia to conquering rebel troops and found a haven in France.

President Manuel Azana.

President Manuel Azana and his family were the first to arrive. He crossed the frontier last night, presented a diplomatic passport and continued toward Paris.

With him were three automobiles marked with the insignia of the president of the Spanish republic and a dozen trucks loaded with gold and silver belonging to the bank of Spain. With Azana came former Premier Joseph Giral.

President Next to Cross.

President Luis Companys of Catalonia and José Aguirre, who was head of the now non-existent Basque republic, were the next to enter France. They arrived on foot and apparently had walked a long distance. Then came Minister of Labor José Moix Regas.

Next to find refuge on French soil was Premier Juan Negrin of Spain. He crossed the border with four of his cabinet in a fleet of eight automobiles at 3:45 a. m. They had driven from Agullana, just across the frontier from Le Perthus, France, where they had held a cabinet meeting earlier in the night. Mattresses and suitcases were strapped on the roofs of their automobiles. The windshield of one of their cars was riddled with bullets.

Premier Negrin quit Spain after failing to negotiate a peace on his own terms with Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the rebel commander in chief. It was said he intends to seek to return to central Spain to continue the war. Azana's aids said the president had broken forever with Negrin.

10,000 Soldiers Enter France.

Routed loyalist troops began crossing the frontier in France yesterday afternoon after the French government opened the border. Almost 10,000 soldiers had entered France before nightfall. The border was left open through the night to women, children, the aged, and the wounded among the refugees seeking a haven in France.

There were estimated to be more than 100,000 of the government's army of 200,000 nearing the frontier with rebel armies pursuing them in fast motorized columns.

Thousands of refugees also surged toward the frontier. At least 100,000 already had crossed. The border region on the French side lay under military rule with from 30,000 to 50,000 fully equipped French soldiers ready for action. They also had field kitchens to help relieve the suffering of the refugees.

Split Over Continuing War.

Government leaders were reported violently split over continuing the war. Azana, Giral, and Companys were said to have appealed to Negrin to surrender immediately to Gen. Franco. But Negrin, with a few of his followers, including Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez del Vayo, was said to have insisted on continuing resistance in central Spain, where the government held area includes Madrid and Valencia.

Negrin's aids said Madrid again would be the government capital as a symbol of his determination to fight on, but that the actual seat of the working government would be returned to Valencia.

Premier Negrin was reported to have told the French government that his government would pay for the care of 150,000 refugees with cash from the Bank of Spain.

Peace Negotiations Unconfirmed.

There was no official confirmation of a report that the Spanish government had asked Great Britain to try to begin peace negotiations with the rebels.

France's decision to open her Spanish frontier, however, was widely regarded as a sign that the French government had abandoned hope that

Gen. Franco would negotiate at this time.

[Reliable quarters in Perpignan said the Spanish government had requested Great Britain to open secret negotiations with the rebels to end the 2½ year old civil war.]

The loyalists already were vanquished in Catalonia. All that remained to make their defeat complete was for Franco's forces to occupy an area no larger than the state of Rhode Island in which there was virtually no resistance.

Franco's front line was only an average of twenty-five miles from France's frontier and at one point was only ten miles away. The rebels took Seo de Urgel on the western end of the line near the republic of Andorra and pushed toward Puigcerda, one of the principal passes to France.

Puigcerda was reported in chaos. Women with crying babies and bewildered children and fleeing soldiers —all hungry—thronged the roads seeking safety and food in Bourg-Madame, France.

In the center of the line, north of Berga, the rebels occupied the villages of Figols, on the west bank of the Llobregat river, and Vilada on the east bank.

Capital Is Abandoned.

In the east the rebels took Figueras, the loyalists' abandoned capital. By nightfall they had pushed on three miles to Pont de Molins, just ten miles from France. On the coast Moroccan forces captured Palamos, northernmost important harbor in Gerona province. The rebels took Seo de Urgel and Figueras without a battle as they had Gerona Saturday.

The fleeing loyalists at the east end of the line crowded toward Le Perthus and Cerbere, the French stations of entry.

Despite the breakaway of Azana and others who seek peace, Negrin pushed plans to continue the war in the central zone.

French reports said Negrin held a meeting of the remnants of his cabinet yesterday afternoon in a villa outside Agullana, just south of the border from Le Perthus, and the cabinet decided Negrin should proceed immediately to the Valencia-Madrid area.

Italians Withdrawn.

Gen. Franco informed French military authorities that he has withdrawn Italian legionaries from the frontier sector. The generalissimo said he had removed the Littorio division, the only Italian unit operating near the frontier, to allay the anxiety of the French.

The French requested the rebels, in view of the absence of further loyalist resistance, not to advance to the frontier immediately, so as to enable them to cope with the urgent refugee problem. The rebels replied they were advancing as quickly as possible, but were hampered by the number of bridges dynamited by the republicans.

A French military mission visited the rebel side of the frontier on Gen. Franco's invitation to verify rebel denials that fortifications had been constructed facing France.

Disarm Refugee Troops.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The French government decided today to permit defeated Spanish government forces estimated to total 200,000 men to cross into France from Catalonia.

The decision was reached by a French military conference at Le Perthus, near the Spanish border. It ordered the soldiers to be disarmed and marched in columns to concentration camps.

The action was accompanied by another decision putting the French frontier zone on a virtual war footing. Civilians were moved out of the district lest Spanish rebels' shots fired after retreating government fighters reach French territory.

The decision to open the border was reached apparently as a result of the breakdown of last-minute efforts to arrange a truce in Catalonia or at least a halt in the rebel advance.

Such a halt would have allowed French authorities to negotiate with Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the rebel leader, for a mass surrender of government fighters.

Many of the 200,000 retreating government men, it was believed, would fail to reach the frontier, for it seemed likely that thousands would be trapped by the lightning rebel advance.

Tuberculin Test Campaign Starts in School Tomorrow

The Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook County will launch its county-wide tuberculin testing program for school children tomorrow at the Riverside-Brookfield High school. Dr. Spencer S. Fuller, health officer of Riverside, will make the tests. Fifteen hundred students will be tested at the J. Sterling Morton High school in Cicero beginning Feb. 13.

Loyalists Split

President Luis Companys of Catalonia (left) and Former Premier Jose Giral, who appealed for surrender. Giral is with President Manuel Azana in France.

Spanish loyalist resistance in Catalonia collapsed yesterday and thousands of soldiers began fleeing into France through Bourg-Madame, Le Perthus, and Cerbere (No. 1). Premier Juan Negrin held his last cabinet meeting at Agullana (No. 2), then left for France. The new loyalist seat is expected to be at Valencia (No. 3).

WOMAN SHERIF SAVES 3 NEGROES FROM LYNCHING

Tallassee, Ala., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Elmore county's woman sherif, Mrs. W. A. Austin, reported tonight three Negroes arrested for killing a white planter had been delivered to a jail in Montgomery, after her deputies dodged 25 or 30 cars of white men. She said the deputies took roundabout roads to save the Negroes from lynching.

The planter, Charlie Herrin, 60 years old, was killed last night by a shotgun blast fired by a masked Negro who invaded his home three miles from here. Mrs. Herrin tossed the gunman her coin purse, containing about $1.50, and he fled.

The shotgun was found today near the home, and the three Negroes were arrested today. One was identified by the sherif as owner of the gun.

Italy Prepares to Build Synthetic Rubber Factory

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

ROME, Feb. 5.—Plans for the erection this year of Italy's first synthetic rubber factory were drawn up at a meeting last week of the interministerial self-sufficiency committee. Experiments to produce rubber commercially were reported some time ago to be highly promising. The committee also decided to intensify the search for coal and ferrous mineral deposits in Italy and increase the production of light metals.

LOYALISTS SLAY 12 OFFICERS WHO DESERTED THEM

45 Trains Distribute War Refugees in France.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PERPIGNAN, France [at the Spanish Frontier], Feb. 5.—Among the thousands of deserters from the Spanish loyalist army who fled to the French frontier were twelve officers who decided to return to Puigcerda, one of the principal gateways to Spain, opposite Bourg-Madame, France.

It was learned tonight that when they rejoined the troops there they were promptly seized and shot. This was not an official military execution, but summary justice dealt out by the front line fighters enraged by the fact that they have been abandoned by their own leaders.

After the executions became known here the result was that practically no deserters elected to return to the fighting lines today. About 5 per cent asked to be sent into rebel Spain, while the overwhelming majority preferred to stay in France.

Order Quick Transfer.

The French government ordered that all soldiers choosing to go to rebel Spain after they entered France should be taken there quickly. The rest will be held in concentration camps until Senator Leon Berard of France has completed negotiations at Burgos looking toward their mass repatriation with guarantees of safety from Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the rebel leader.

A special train today carried 1,300 former loyalist soldiers, who asked to be repatriated to Franco Spain, to Hendaye, where they crossed the frontier. En route two men jumped from the train when it slowed down and escaped in France. This was the second trainload to be sent into Franco territory.

Forty-five special trains carrying about 1,000 persons each are distributing refugees throughout the west and south of France. The work of entrainment and distribution goes on night and day.

Seek to Save Prisoners .

Two thousand rebel men and women held as political prisoners by the Spanish government in villages just south of the border were to be brought into France tonight. The move resulted from two urgent demands made by the French government which feared they might be slaughtered by frenzied, retreating loyalists.

The prisoners will be transferred to rebel territory under the direction of French authorities and Gen. Franco will be asked to exchange government sympathizers for them.

Priceless Spanish art treasures from Madrid's Prado museum and other collections reached France just in time. The last of a long line of trucks, which started crossing the border yesterday, entered Le Perthus at noon. The paintings will be preserved in Geneva until peace returns to Spain.

Bring Artillery Along.

Thirty truckloads of munitions passed through Cerbere [opposite Portbou] into France. French officials were silent as to what would be done with the material, but Spanish truck drivers said it would be sent to the Valencia zone by sea. Some Spanish units even have brought their artillery to France. What will be done with it is undecided.

In addition to being stripped of weapons and placed in strongly guarded camps, the Spanish soldiers who enter France are forced to have all fingers on the right hand finger printed.

Many members of the loyalist high command were luckier than the ordinary loyalist rank and file. Twenty-two loyalist planes containing at least one staf officer of the loyalist air force and many other lesser officers landed today at the Carcassone airfield, fifty-five miles north of the frontier. Three others arrived at Illats, near Carcassone.

The flyers surrendered their planes to French authorities who are holding them. The flyers said most of the loyalist aviation had been flown to the Madrid-Valencia zone.

The heaviest flow of refugees was through Le Perthus, border point south of here. It was reported 22,000 persons entered there. Tonight these refugees were camped, gypsy style.

ANDREWS' SON READS PLEA AND RETURNS HOME

Washington, D. C., Feb. 5.—(AP)—William Andrews, son of wage-hour Administrator Elmer Andrews, was back at his father's home today.

Aids of Andrews said the boy, who left the university of Pennsylvania last Monday without informing authorities, read in a New York newspaper yesterday a plea from Paul Sifton, deputy wage-hour administrator, for him to get in touch with his father.

William then called his father on the telephone, they said, and joined him last night after the father returned from Pittsburgh, where he had gone to make an address. Andrews' aids quoted the boys as saying he left school to "go out and get a job," never thinking that his unexplained absence would cause alarm.

Veteran Philippine Rebels Urge Freedom for Islands

MANILA, Feb. 6 [Monday.]—(AP)—Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo's veterans of the Philippine insurrection, in annual convention, went on record today opposing perpetuation of the commonwealth or dominion form of government and urging early complete independence from the United States. They criticized the withdrawal of Aguinaldo's $5,000 annual pension last year by Commonwealth President Manuel L. Quezon's government.

U. S. WARANTS REVEAL MUSICA INVOLVED IN HUGE BOOTLEG PLOT

New York, Feb. 5.—[Special.]—Officials today disclosed another ramification of the activities of the late Philip Musica, who before his suicide was known as F. Donald Coster, president of McKesson & Robbins, Inc.

Warants in connection with a huge alcohol diversion scheme were issued in New Haven, Conn., and evidence in the plot will be presented there before a federal grand jury when it convenes on Feb. 14.

The manufacture and sale of bootleg liquor was virtually a foolproof scheme while the Coster empire was intact and his front of respectability had not been pierced. Through one of the Coster-controled subsidiaries, the ring had access to large quantities of alcohol.

Italian Takes Off on 2d Leg of Flight to Argentina

HINTS ITALY WILL KEEP ITS ARMY IN SPAIN AFTER WAR

Editor Stresses Political Victory Is Necessary.

ROME, Feb. 5. — (AP) — Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, today suggested the possibility that Italian troops would remain in Spain even after Spanish rebel forces occupied the entire country.

The Fascist grand council early today had served notice that Italian volunteers "will not abandon" the Spanish civil war "before it is ended, as it must end, with [Generalissimo Francisco] Franco's victory."

Gayda, writing in La Voce d'Italia, indicated this victory would not be considered won until the insurgents had consolidated their political domination of Spain as well as military control.

[One of the points in the British-Italian pact signed last April 16 was withdrawal of all Italian fighters and war materials from Spain at the end of the war, if not completed earlier.]

Demands Political Victory.

Gayda, leading journalistic spokesman of the Fascist régime, said the Spanish government forces and their supporters, "although beaten at arms, are not disarming in the political field." He charged that "new pressure and diplomatic intervention" were being planned against the rebels.

"Therefore, German and Italian assistence to the Nationalists [insurgents] cannot be reduced," he said. "To military victory, complete political victory must be added. Experience reminds Franco's friends that between one victory and the other, foreign intrigue may intervene.

"Until total liquidation of red [government] arms and armies in Spain and adjacent territories, where they were previously organized and where they find periodic refuge and assistance, until renunciation of every other undue, effective, political intervention, the victory of Franco cannot be said to be complete and assured.

"Therefore, Italian legionnaires will not abandon Spanish territory until it shall have been purged completely of Red armies and associated corrosive attempts to their friends."

See Mussolini Biding Time.

Gayda's declaration coincided with a belief in diplomatic circles that Premier Mussolini would postpone bringing the Italian-French dispute to a head until Franco was in complete control of Spain.

Some expected that France would be pressed to recognize as just the as yet unofficial demands for colonial concessions to Italy as the price for removal of the threat of Italian troops on the Pyrenees frontier. This view would mean that a show down on the Italian-French controversy would not be likely before spring.

Gayda observed that "several weeks" would be required to prepare for rebel attack on Valencia and Madrid for the conquest of central Spain.

Fascist press attacks on the United States subsided as the result of President Roosevelt's denial of reports that he had told a senate committee America's frontier either was in France or on the Rhine.

The impression remained among Fascists, however, that the American policy was committed to support European democracies against the totalitarian states.

Gayda warned that German and Italian political and military solidarity was prepared to meet such a situation. This solidarity is defensive, he said, but "ready to proceed against any conspiracy and any stupid attempt at encirclement."

Examine Defense Today.

The supreme defense commission will meet with Mussolini tomorrow to examine the nation's military, naval, and air forces.

It was expected that the new "light" mobile division, on which basis the Italian army is being reorganized, would be the principal subject of the session.

It has been tested under actual combat in Spain with results which Gen. Gastone Gambara, commander of Italian forces in Spain, has reported to Mussolini have been strikingly successful.

Il Duce heads the defense commission, composed of members of the cabinet and high military and naval commanders.

Singer Robbed

MILDRED GERBER.

Police were searching yesterday for bandits who early in the morning kidnaped Mildred Gerber, young opera and concert singer, and her husband, Dr. Adolph A. Smolen, and robbed them of $1,460 in cash and other valuables. The robbers appeared when they were entering their automobile in front of 167 West Washington street. They drove the car to Paulina street and Maypole avenue and fled on foot. The Smolens went to their home at 1855 South Karlov avenue, after reporting the robbery.

4 NEW BOMBINGS TERRIFY BRITAIN; BARE VAST PLOT

Buckingham Palace Put Under Heavy Guard.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Increased guards were thrown around Buckingham palace and Britain's famous houses of parliament today following discovery of a bizarre conspiracy rivaling the 17th century "gunpowder plot" to blow them up.

Scotland Yard officials, who attribute the recent wave of bombings in England to the king-hating outlawed Irish Republican army, said details of the plot were uncovered in a raid at Belfast, in Northern Ireland.

They immediately pressed into service 10,000 extra police to guard the country's vital services and historic buildings. A special guard watched Windsor castle, where King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth were on a week-end holiday.

Bomb Four Stores.

Some quarters likened the plot against the houses of parliament with the frustrated attempt in 1605 to blow up the historic buildings during agitation against anti-Catholic laws enforced by King James I.

Despite Scotland Yard's elaborate week-end precautions there were spasmodic outbreaks of terrorism. Incendiary bombs were set off in four stores at Coventry. An explosion blew out a part of Walton prison at Liverpool, where a number of persons accused of taking part in the terrorist activities were held.

Mounting anti-Irish feeling forced a number of Irish laborers employed in Britain to return home. Some Irishmen working at Manchester, Glasgow and Liverpool reported they were discharged because of bitterness aroused among their British employers over the bombings which started Jan. 16. Others said they quit voluntarily. The total number affected was not known.

Blame I. R. A. Terrorism.

The disclosure yesterday by Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax of an ultimatum from the I. R. A. demanding withdrawal of British troops from Irish soil strengthened the belief in some quarters that the organization was responsible for the terrorism.

Others expressed belief the secret Irish Republican brotherhood, sworn to eternal enmity to Britain, was the main inspiration behind the bombing activities. The brotherhood came into existence in 1853 to unite Irishmen throughout the world in a movement for an independent Irish Republic completely separated from Britain.

Alarm was growing on the Ireland-Northern Ireland frontier where a number of shootings have been reported following the tightening of British regulations there.

The situation has been intensified by the urging of Prime Minister Eamon De Valera's supporters that Irish troops be sent to the border to maintain order. A number of automobiles were said to have been fired on by border police patrols when their commands to halt were ignored.

Found in Chicago

VIVIANE EUGENIE ALLENBY.

Viviane Eugenie Allenby, who ran away from New York Jan. 18, was found in Chicago yesterday working as a nursemaid at 5038 Drexel boulevard. A newspaper picture led to her discovery.

Miss Allenby, 19 years old, and pretty, admitted she was the runaway. She left St. Luke's hospital nursing school in New York following a reprimand. She came to Chicago but at no time concealed her real name or home address, she said.

She is a third cousin of the late Viscount Allenby. She never saw the British hero, however. Viscount Allenby died in 1936. His greatest exploit was the driving of the Turks out of the Holy Land in 1917. Miss Allenby's father is James E. Allenby, a Bronx industrial engineer. He said in New York last night that he would come to Chicago at once for his daughter.

TRACE OF SOAP ON STOLEN RING LEADS TO ARREST

Fred Drake, 18 years old, 2642 Potomac avenue, will be arraigned in Boys' court today on a charge of larceny as the result of clever detective work by Mrs. Walter J. Krischke, who lives on an upper floor at that address.

Six months ago a diamond ring was stolen from her apartment. A few days ago Drake returned the ring to her. He said he had recovered it from a neighborhood boy.

Mrs. Krischke suspected Drake because he had been cleaning her apartment windows the day of the theft. She examined the returned ring, and found traces of soap on it. She recalled that Drake's sweetheart worked in a beauty shop, and assumed that the soap had formed while the girl wore the ring at her work. Mrs. Krischke questioned the girl. She admitted Drake had given the ring to her, but that she had returned it following a quarrel. Drake was arrested.

Crew Demands Pay; French Seize U. S. Ship in Algiers

ALGIERS, Algeria, Feb. 5. — (AP) — French authorities seized the American freighter Wisconsin today on a complaint from members of the crew that her master had failed to pay their wages. The crew members charged more than $10,000 was due them. The Wisconsin arrived from Bone, Algeria, five days ago.

[Lloyds' register lists the Wisconsin as a 6,076 ton vessel owned by the Bulk Carriers corporation and her port of registry as Portland, Ore.]

BRITAIN RECALLS GUNPOWDER PLOT OF 300 YEARS AGO

Dynamite blasts in England revived the memory today of England's gunpowder plot, which, though frustrated, has reverberated for over 300 years. The blast was to have occurred on Nov. 5, 1605. The anniversary of this date still is celebrated in England.

Had the explosion occurred it might have destroyed parliament and its members, precipitated a revolution, and demolished the youthful British empire before America was settled.

In the fall of 1604, a man rented a house next door to the parliament buildings. For months thereafter, he and several others silently piled up, under a camouflage of coal and wood, more than a ton and a half of gunpowder in a tunnel dug under the house of lords.

The man was Guy Fawkes, an English soldier of fortune hired from the Spanish army by men stirred to revolutionary fever by the laws of King James I. It was nearly a year before the arrangements were ready. Then, just as the plot was to be sprung, a member of the house of lords received a mysterious letter telling of the conspiracy.

The plotters tried to escape, but four days later they were trapped. Two escaped, four were killed, and ten were captured. Nine later were executed and one died a prisoner in the tower of London.

Dashes Back Into Burning Home; Trapped; Rescued

Robert Jenkins, 35 years old, was rescued from his burning second floor apartment at 3212 Lake Park avenue last night after he had once escaped safely. When the fire broke out, Jenkins led his family outside. He returned to recover some personal effects, but was trapped by smoke. Fireman Edwin Wall of Engine Company 16 went to his aid and led him safely outside. The fire did $2,500 damage.

FIGHT TO SAVE LIFE FAILS.

Thomas Dever, 63 years old, died of unknown causes in his room at 203 South Throop street yesterday in spite of the efforts to save him made by Inhalator Squad 6.

MR. HAMBURGER HARRY IS SORE—NAME IS HENRY!

The young man on the other end of the wire was definitly annoyed.

"What," he wanted to know, "do you mean by calling me Hamburger Harry?" My name's Henry!"

It was late Saturday night. His voice came over the telephone to the detective bureau press room. And it was true the monicker was phony. In a moment of pique Lieut. Richard Barry had given a persistent robber of hamburger stands such a name, not knowing, of course, what it was.

The reporters scoffed. It couldn't be the actual thief on the telephone, they thought.

"So you think it's funny, eh?" asked the caller. "I'll show you. I'll stick up another place before 5 a. m. Sunday."

Came 4:35 a. m. Into the hamburger stand at 4712 Madison street walked a young man in a hurry. His hair was reddish brown. He wore the regulation brown suede jacket. In one hand was a revolver; in the other a worn paper sack.

"Put your dough in the bag and be quick about it," he demanded. Lee Gossage, 5813 South Troy street, the manager, complied to the extent of $4.50, and the thief hurried away.

Hamburger Henry had fulfilled his threat.

REPRIEVE GIVEN IN PROTEST ON DEATH PENALTY

Austin, Tex., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel told a radio audience today he gave a condemned Negro a thirty day reprieve last week—so he could face death that much longer—to arouse public opinion against capital punishment.

"Not being of a political mind," the governor said, "I did not care to resort to the usual polished diplomacy but my frank, open and honest disposition promoted me to prepare a statement which would arouse public opinion and I said in plain English what our polite government officials have never dared to say—that this reprieve meant thirty days of cruel punishment, the same cruel punishment that the prisoner has suffered every day since his sentence was pronounced . . ."

The punishment reprieve caused a storm of controversy.

BRITISH MAY PUT A STANDING ARMY IN THE HOLY LAND

Chief of Staf in Palestine Studying Problem.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The British government today was reliably reported to be considering establishment of an important army reserve base in Palestine as Jews and Arabs gathered here to try to settle the dispute over the Holy Land. Viscount Gort, chief of the imperial general staf, now is in the near east studying the problem.

Announcement of the new army base, some quarters believed, would be the first move in putting a new British Palestine plan into operation if the Jews and Arabs fail to reach an agreement in their talks starting Tuesday.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York, American representative at the talks, said he had heard of the British Palestine defense proposal. He would not comment on it, however.

British war office officials said they "could not discuss the question."

Cite Three Reasons for Step.

These three reasons were given in support of putting a standing army in the near east:

1. It would assure maintenance of peace between Jews and Arabs in the Holy Land.

2. It would increase British protection of the Suez canal and the important oil pipe line from Iraq, which reaches the Mediterranean at Haifa, Palestine.

3. It would bridge the gap which now exists in defense along the empire "life line" between India and England.

Although British troops are stationed in Egypt, authoritative quarters here felt that defenses in the eastern Mediterranean needed reinforcement, particularly since the Italian clamor for French territory in the Mediterranean region and a share in control of the Suez canal.

Pessimistic Over Parley.

Although the Arabs and Jews were not to meet the British in the picture gallery of St. James's palace until Tuesday, even British officials were pessimistic about the possibility of an agreement being reached.

British official quarters said the delegates would be given "three or four weeks" to reach a decision. Unless there were definite signs then of a settlement, it was said, Britain would produce her own plan.

This plan, it officially was disclosed, already has been "fairly well worked out."

The issue over the Holy Land was difficult because Britain believes it to be a conflict between "two rights."

Here's What Rivals Want.

The Arabs want:

1. Complete stoppage of Jewish immigration to Palestine and a prohibition against sales of land there to Jews.

2. Creation of an independent, autonomous Arab government.

3. Withdrawal of the British promise under the Balfour declaration of Nov. 2, 1917, to help establish a Jewish national homeland in Palestine and an end to the British mandate over the Holy Land.

The Jews want:

1. Fulfilment by Britain of her promise to try to establish a Jewish national home in Palestine.

2. Freedom for Jews to emigrate to Palestine up to the territory's economic capacity to absorb them and freedom to buy all the land they want.

3. A promise that they not be reduced to a minority status.

Refuse to Sit in Same Room.

The delegates to the talks were so far apart that the Arabs refused even to sit in the same room with the Jews. As a result, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain must make two opening addresses, first to the Arabs at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday and then to the Jews at noon.

The discussions also will be attended by Arab delegates from Egypt, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Yemen, Trans-Jordan, and the moderate Palestine national defense committee.

LAUNCH NATIONAL DEFENSE WEEK IN CHICAGO SUNDAY

Observance of the sixth annual national defense week will begin next Sunday in Chicago with services in St. James' Episcopal church. The Reserve Officers' association, which sponsors defense week, will attend the services. The Rev. Duncan H. Brown, pastor, will preach.

Brig. Gen. Karl Truesdell, commandant of Fort Sheridan, will be the speaker at a military luncheon to be held by the Engineers' club on Tuesday, Feb. 14.

New Border Clash

(Story in adjoining column.)

Hungarian and Czecho-Slovak troops clashed again yesterday along the border of Carpatho-Ukraine, easternmost province of Czecho-Slovakia. The Hungarians charged they were fired upon from a church steeple at Gereny, as indicated by arrow, and just across the border from Radvanc.

BUDAPEST ENVOY AND STAF QUIT RUSSIA FOR GOOD

MOSCOW, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Five years of Hungarian-soviet Russian diplomatic relations reached a frozen finish today. Officials of the foreign office said a formal farewell to the Hungarian minister and his staf, who were leaving Moscow for good by request.

Climatically speaking, it was a real freezeout in bitter cold. All Moscow, too, seemed to be turning a cold shoulder toward the retreating Hungarians who, in the eyes of the soviet government, had "lost their independence."

Fifty fur clad members of the diplomatic corps shivered and stamped their feet on the station platform as they said good-by to Michael Jungerth-Arnothy, the Hungarian minister, and his staf.

The soviet government notified Hungary Thursday it was closing its Budapest legation. It asked the Budapest government to follow suit here because of Hungary's decision on Jan. 13 to join the Italian-German Japanese anti-communist pact.

URGES BUILDING SMALL WARSHIPS IN CHICAGO AREA

Chicago is well suited for the building of light naval craft, Oscar G. Mayer, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, said yesterday. He pledged coöperation with Mayor Kelly in efforts to secure federal shipbuilding contracts in the proposed naval armament program.

On Saturday Mayor Kelly sent telegrams to Secretary of War Woodring, Secretary of the Navy Swanson, and Secretary of Commerce Hopkins pointing out the many facilities for shipbuilding in the Chicago area. The mayor also asked Senators James Hamilton Lewis and Scott W. Lucas to use their influence in obtaining some of the work for Chicago.

CZECHS FIRE ON MAGYARS FROM CHURCH STEEPLE

Budapest Angered by New Border Clash.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The Hungarian commander at Ungvar reported today that his border patrols again had been fired upon from the Czecho-Slovak side of the frontier. He said the fire apparently came from a machine gun mounted in a church steeple in the village of Gereny.

The commander said his border patrols were subjected to scattered rifle fire at Radvanc. No casualties were mentioned. Hungary lodged an official protest with the Czecho-Slovak regional military command.

[Czecho-Slovak officials at Prague reported fighting broke out at Radvanc when twenty Hungarian "irregulars" attacked Czecho-Slovak guards, but were driven back. Czecho-Slovaks said the skirmish lasted seven hours.]

Ungvar and Munkacs, 22 miles east, were the scenes of Hungarian and Czecho-Slovak artillery clashes last month along the border of Carpatho-Ukraine, eastern autonomous province of Czecho-Slovakia. Following the battles Hungary warned that another similar clash would bring an invasion of Czecho-Slovak territory.

Strong police guards kept close watch over Budapest's synagogues today while the government enforced martial law to quell political violence which flared Friday with the bombing of the capital's largest Jewish temple.

Pedestrians were prohibited from walking on sidewalks beside the synagogues, and nearby routes were under strict guard.

The drastic martial law decree was issued following a cabinet session last night at which Friday's bombing, in which twenty persons were injured, was the subject of lengthy discussion.

Four in Serious Condition.

The blast at the main entrance of the Dohany street synagogue was set off as parliament, a mile away, was discussing liberalizing amendments to a proposed law for the strict regulation of Jews in Hungary.

Four of those injured remained in serious condition. Most of the others had been discharged from hospitals.

In a statement today the vice president of the Budapest Criminal court warned citizens to adhere strictly to provisions of the martial law decree.

Death Sentence Provided.

The act empowered special courts to impose the death sentence by hanging on any persons caught in possession of explosives.

Police meanwhile disclosed two bombs exploded simultaneously Friday at the Dohany street synagogue and that a third failed to explode.

They said the unexploded bomb gave them vital clews as to the origin of materials from which the explosives were made.

MEN OF MEANS—WITH FREEDOM, BUT NOT A CENT

Daniel Boone's Spirit Is Carrying On.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cumberland Gap, Tenn., Feb. 5.—[Special.]—The first white explorer to stand upon the Pinnacle nearly two hundred years ago and look upon this Eden panorama of valleys, streams and mountains dreamed of an industrial colony that would increase the power and wealth of Great Britain.

The music of many waters, the voices of past ages whispering in the pines and cedars, foretold, however, no new temple to tyranny or aristocracy but the irresistible march of a people with the simple concept of liberty. From under the wings and the sword of Europe, as if moved by a hand of destiny, the power of the invisible spirit of man, they came out of these shadowy blue mountains to the east to conquer a continent.

In looking back upon their trails, from the Atlantic coast to the headwaters of the Shenandoah, down to the Yadkin and through the gaps of the Alleghanies into the Holston, Watagua, Clinch and Pigeon river valleys, it seems as though these were men of many names but of one spirit. And a few names follow through, all the way from Europe to the Mississippi and beyond.

Boone More than a Hunter.

The name of Daniel Boone is most closely associated with the Gap. He was more than a great hunter and woodsman and Indian fighter. He was a trail blazer of civilization, conscious of his destiny and that of his country.

We see him first as a farm boy in a cabin near what is now Baumstone, Pa., where he lived until he was 17 and where he killed a bear at the age of 13. We follow him through the foothill valleys south to the Yadkin country of North Carolina, a country that was then an Indian frontier and which still retains its primitive characteristics in its more remote sections. Here young Boone grew in strength and knowledge, longing for the unknown lands beyond the horizon.

In 1769 we find him with John Findlay, John Stewart, James Mooney, and William Cool breaking through the gaps and reaching what is now Kentucky on a hunting expedition. In May of that year Boone looked upon the Ohio. It was probably then that he had his vision of the empire that was to come.

He had stopped a few weeks in the Watagua valley settlement of John Sevier and James Robertson, where he might have found plenty of room for his talents, but he had a more compelling errand. Almost every year of that decade we find him pushing westward with groups of settlers, including members of his own family.

In 1773, in the Powell river valley which breaks through here from Virginia, his 20 year old son, James, was killed in a surprise attack by Indians. The next year, in another attempt, the Indians attacked the Boone party on the Clinch river, killing John Duncan. Boone and his companions never knew whether they would live to see another day.

Party Drifts Home.

In the winter of 1775 Capt. William Twetty and party left North Carolina. They stopped at the Watagua settlement long enough to get Boone to guide them and then set forth for the meadows of Kentucky. They cut traces with their hatchets as they went along, thus marking the famous Boone trail across the hills to the Holston, over the next range to the Clinch, then to the Powell river, and finally through this gap to Rockcastle creek.

They camped twelve miles from the site of old Boonesboro on the Kentucky river. Here Twetty was killed by Indians and the party broke up, drifting back home. Boone remained and was alone in the wilderness for weeks, sleeping in canebrakes at night without fire. He was never lost, he said, but was "bewildered" once for three days. He was finally found by his brother, Squire Boone, an ordained Baptist preacher.

On his next attempt at settlement Boone was employed by Richard Henderson, who had purchased hundreds of thousands of acres from the Indians at the treaty of Sycamore Shoals and dreamed of planting a great colony in Kentucky. Boone got them through and a land office was opened, but the colony failed for reasons that will be told later. Boonesboro never flourished. Others reaped the reward and Boone went on and on, always ahead of the settlers, until he reached the Missouri country and became old.

Today's March Is Onward.

Now what of the results today? From the Pinnacle's soaring rock platform one may gaze into the heart of what has been called America's economic problem No. 1. Along the Boone trail today one may see dilapidated houses, doorways filled with ragged, tow-headed children, little mountain side farms where the average income is around $150 a year, perhaps only $50 in cash.

Before the dawn of history men lived here and the trail of Boone, marked by the eagle, which succeeded where waves of British, French, and Spanish empire had broken against the Appalachians, should mark something better than poverty. And it does. The statistics recede against the actual scene. Amid the iris and columbine, the pines and rocks, something better lives and many hands are at work to lift the pall of poverty. In all these hills individuals are abroad, and communities and colleges reflecting the Christian spirit.

Henry Harvey Fuson, mountain poet of these parts, writes of one Henry Tway who came bear hunting with Boone and settled here with his family in sight of the Pinnacle.

Home Greater than Castle.

Of his descendants he writes:

"Herbert Tway lives at the lower end, on a rocky prominence, above a stream. He has far views of the valley, an orchard, walnuts, oaks, chestnuts. This home is greater than a castle. Herbert Tway is a man of means, although he has not one cent. For heaven and earth are but realms of possibility in right direction bent. He fights for a family of man, with humor in his eyes.

"Joshua Tway [another descendant], is a man as staid as the morning star, and as wise. He is like a sound apple or a strong oak.

"Timothy Stiles married Matilda Tway. Timothy has a happy smile and friendly word for all. Sedate is she and firm as fate, with no thought but of a millennium to be. Hiram Tway became a judge with democratic vision. This valley and these hills are a world sublime."

One Front Against Tyrants.

From the first memorials of the settlers of old Augusta county, Virginia, in the Mecklenberg declaration of independence, in the articles of the Watagua association and in the constitution of the old state of Franklin, we find the first and strongest determination to be rid of tyrants of "every form and denomination forever."

C. G. Quesenberg, a member of the Virginia house of delegates, said recently in an address at Waynesboro, Va.:

"If we may draw one conclusion above all others from the problems of the colonists, it is the fact that they were impressed primarily by the lack of any personal freedom or liberty, and that any governing body should be responsive to the demands and desires of its people and that adequate safeguards be provided to prevent the encroachment by the central government upon the inalienable rights of the people of the several colonies or state."

This is the tradition and the heritage of thought in which the living problems of today must be approached. The pioneers have been in the process of conquering themselves and bending the processes of the democratic state to strengthened social action. But however much they will bend they will set up no new tyranny.

[Note—The ninth article of this series will tell of the settlement of Kentucky and the remarkable memorial at Harrodsburg.]

DU PAGE COUNTY WILL CELEBRATE 100TH BIRTHDAY

Du Page county officials yesterday buckled themselves into frockcoats, pasted on side whiskers and prepared to impersonate the legislators who helped to establish their county 100 years ago.

In a celebration beginning Thursday afternoon in the courthouse at Wheaton, six men and a woman will reenact the scene in the Illinois legislature of 1839 as it authorized the division of Cook county and the establishment of Du Page county.

Senator Richard J. Barr will impersonate Abraham Lincoln. State Representative Joseph S. Perry will portray Stephen A. Douglas. N. W. Lies, president of the Du Page board of supervisors and head of the centennial, will be Stinton H. Anderson, speaker of the senate. Others include Judge Win G. Knoch, Clarence V. Wagemann, county clerk, and Lottie Holman O'Neill, state representative, as Ann Rutledge, sweetheart of Lincoln.

BROOKS PRAISES GREEN AS NEW TYPE OF LEADER

Says His Election Would Move Chicago Ahead.

Wayland Brooks, Republican candidate for governor in 1936, yesterday urged voters to take advantage of a new type of leadership by nominating and electing Dwight H. Green mayor of Chicago.

Brooks conferred with the regular G. O. P. organization candidate in the Green for mayor headquarters in the La Salle hotel. After they discussed the radio broadcast Brooks will make at 9:30 p. m. tonight over WMAQ, Brooks issued an enthusiastic statement in Green's behalf.

Both Former Prosecutors.

Green was 42 years old last month. Brooks will be 42 next month. Both men are former prosecutors who won recognition for their battles against crime, Green as United States district attorney, Brooks as assistant state's attorney.

"Green represents the new type of leadership which brought victory to the Republicans in a dozen states," Brooks said.

"I sincerely urge the people of Chicago to take advantage of this opportunity. The office of mayor in Chicago is more important than the office of governor in many states. It is the office closest to the people."

Means Welcome to Industry.

Election of Dwight H. Green will mean that the city has hung signs proclaiming a welcome to industry, Brooks asserted.

"When industrial leaders realize that Chicago has turned to the new type of leadership they will know that this city will no longer be crime-ridden, that taxes will be reduced, and that good government will be established.

"Industry then will feel free to come here. More jobs will be opened. Real progress will begin."

Brooks struck at alliances with foreign countries, which he said may lead to war. Chicago must have a Republican mayor who will resist such entanglements instead of supporting them, he said.

Green a War Veteran.

As the first world war veteran to run for mayor, Green is particularly well qualified in this respect, said Brooks.

Green will speak tonight before the Union Teachers' league in the Auditorium theater. At noon he will address the Merchants and Manufacturers' club in the Merchandise Mart.

Opal Hull and Irma Moore didn't see why both should get their feet wet in the Ohio river flood at Ironton, O. So Opal is carrying Irma from her home.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Fears of an extensive flood eased tonight as the Ohio river leveled off along a long expanse, but relief agencies faced the task of caring for an estimated 30,000 refugees in four states. The death toll stood at six.

Kentucky and West Virginia faced the biggest job of rehabilitation after mountain streams covered homes in mining areas.

The Ohio was falling from Pittsburgh to Wheeling and forecasters said the crest probably had been reached along eastern Ohio and West Virginia points where the water indicated lowland homes.

United States Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux forecast fair and warmer weather for Kentucky and West Virginia, with possible rain tomorrow night. He added that the showers would have little effect on the river stages.

Find Missing Chicago Wife in Hospital at Milwaukee

Mrs. Victoria Carlson, 27 years old, who left her home at 3034 Wilton street on Jan. 28 after writing a farewell note composed of the titles of popular songs, was found yesterday in Milwaukee. Lieut. Joseph Starshak, head of the missing persons bureau, was informed by Milwaukee police that Mrs. Carlson is in Milwaukee General hospital suffering from effects of an overdose of sleeping medicine. Her husband, John Carlson, owner of a tavern at 3055 Sheffield avenue, was notified.

RELIEFER DIES OF FALL.

Joseph Conless, 59 years old, died in the County hospital yesterday of a skull fracture suffered Saturday outside the relief shelter at 1426 Newberry avenue, where he lived.

HORAN CHARGES KELLY'S REGIME IS EXTRAVAGANT

Predicts Courtney Will Be Next Mayor.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Albert J. Horan, bailif of the Municipal court, who is one of the managers of State's Attorney Courtney's campaign for mayor, yesterday charged the Kelly-Nash organization with waste and extravagance.

In the Courtney headquarters Horan has assumed the chairmanship of organization. In the Horner-Courtney campaigns of 1936 and 1938 the post was held by Martin J. O'Brien. O'Brien has declared for Courtney, but it is understood that he declined to assume his old rôle at headquarters because of the battle in his own ward, the 29th, of which he is ward committeeman.

Says Polls Indicate Victory.

"If the people turn out and vote on Feb. 28 as they indicate they intend to do in every poll taken in Chicago, State's Attorney Courtney is certain to be Chicago's next mayor," said Horan's statement.

"I charge the Kelly-Nash machine with waste and extravagance of a kind that comes close to being criminal.

"As a tax levying official of the city of Chicago who has been the only one who reduced expenditures in his office and refused to pad the pay rolls of the Municipal court, I am tired of hearing the hypocritical explanations of Kelly and his campaign managers. The fact is that every other department head in the city hall from Kelly down has raised the annual expenditures of his office."

Cites His Own Efforts.

He then referred to his effort to drop from his pay roll in the 1938 primary a number of deputy bailifs who refused to leave the regular organization. The Municipal court judges put them back on the pay roll.

"I tried to lower mine," said Horan of that incident, "from $982,000 to $865,000 and what happened? The Kelly-Nash controled judiciary sentenced me to jail. The Kelly machine doesn't want a public official who reduces tax levies and saves the people money. The machine orders its judges to hold such an official guilty of contempt for refusing to put fifty-five employés back to work when the volume of business in the court has fallen to such a point that they are unnecessary."

Political Notes

Frank J. Gillespie of the Dairy Employés union pointed yesterday to an advertisment of Thomas J. Courtney's first candidacy for state's attorney in 1932 as proof of his statement in a recent radio speech that John Fitzpatrick had indorsed the prosecutor in the past. Last Saturday Fitzpatrick, who is president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, wrote Gillespie a letter saying he never indorsed Courtney for any office and strongly opposing his nomination for mayor. The language used in newspaper advertisments which Gillespie said constituted an indorsement read:

"The voting record of Senator Courtney on labor bills is 100 per cent favorable.—John Fitzpatrick."

The first of four sectional mass-meetings of the regular Democratic organization will be held tonight at the International Amphitheater in the Union Stockyards. Workers from nineteen wards are expected to attend. Mayor Kelly and his running mates, Ludwig D. Schreiber for city clerk, and Thomas S. Gordon for city treasurer, will speak.

County Judge Jarecki will speak for Courtney from station WENR at 8:45 tonight. The state's attorney himself will be on the air tomorrow night, and the radio program for the prosecutor calls for speeches by John Hogan, J. D. Bibb, Arthur F. Albert, and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank later in the week.

In a radio speech for Mayor Kelly yesterday Peter J. Angsten, chairman of the state industrial commission, said: "I believe that the faith of Gov. Horner in the Chicago Democracy will be best justified by retaining Mayor Kelly for the next four years."

QUIT ACCEPTING NONRELIEFERS FOR JOBS ON WPA

Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief administrator, said yesterday that no more nonrelief applications for WPA jobs will be accepted at the CRA's central intake station at 11th and State streets.

Beginning today the central intake unit's work will be limited to passing on applications for direct relief. At its meeting on Friday the Illinois Emergency Relief commission ordered that certification of nonrelief applicants be stopped inasmuch as there is a state waiting list of nearly 80,00.

WOMEN LEADERS ASK RE-ELECTION OF MAYOR KELLY

Will Organize Community Clubs for Campaign.

BY MARCIA WINN.

A group of Chicago women, leaders in various fields, yesterday announced their support of Mayor Kelly in his campaign for reëlection.

Mrs. Bertha Van Wakeman.

The group will serve as an executive committee to work with Mrs. Bertha Van Wakeman, who renounced the presidency of the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs to serve as chairman of the Kelly women's division. The group's work, she said, will be to organize communities rather than wards.

The attitude of many of the committee members, some of whom are well known as independents in politics, is expressed by Mrs. Harry Myerson, welfare worker and past president of the National Council of Jewish Women.

Interested Only in Chicago.

"I am not a politician," Mrs. Myerson said, "and I am not interested in politics. But I am interested in Chicago.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Mayor Kelly is the best fitted of the candidates, the logical one to direct Chicago's affairs in the important years ahead. To defeat him now would be to penalize Chicago."

Miss Agnes Nestor, women's labor leader and since 1913 president of the Women's Trade Union league, also is on the committee; as an individual, however, rather than as league president.

"I'm interested simply because I think he is giving us a very good administration," Miss Nestor explained. "I think he has been particularly friendly to organized labor. He has certainly given us a fair deal all the way through.

"We believe that he has a worthwhile program. He has certainly carried out a good program and he has an excellent program to finish for the city."

Speak on Radio Tonight.

Mrs. Myerson, Miss Nestor, and a third member of the committee, Mrs. John Wesley Gray, who once ran for the Republican nomination for mayor, will speak over WENR at 8 p. m. today on "Why Chicago's Schools Are Chicago's Pride."

Among the other committee members are Mrs. William E. Dever, widow of a former mayor; Mrs. Loyal Davis, wife of the brain specialist; Mrs. William S. Monroe, civic leader; Mrs. George V. McIntyre, president of the Catholic Big Sisters; Mrs. Maurice L. Rothschild, wife of the State street merchant; Mrs. Victor Olander, wife of the labor leader.

Mrs. William S. Campbell, whose husband is United States district attorney, also is a member. Other members include Mrs. Edward Joyce, secretary of the Woman's City club; Mrs. C. E. Ruthruff, Mrs. George Aste, Mrs. Jennie Joseph, and Mrs. Anna L. Smith, former Democratic national committeewoman.

"We're organizing independent groups," Mrs. Van Wakeman said. "That is, women who otherwise might not be interested in voting. We want any one who is willing to work for Mayor Kelly to help."

LOCATED THE LINE but LOST THE TRANSIT

Expert as he is at locating invisible lot lines, the engineer can lose some of his valuable equipment just as easily as you can lose furs, money, or jewelry.

Whenever you lose anything of value, be sure to telephone a Lost and Found want ad to the Chicago Tribune. Thousands of dollars' worth of property is restored each year to owners who advertise in the Lost and Found column of the Tribune.

Regardless of what you may have lost, or where in Chicago or suburbs you may have lost it, there is a good chance that a Tribune reader will find it.

Every day of the week the Tribune is read by more than 710,000 families right in metropolitan Chicago. This is practically as many as read any two other Chicago newspapers combined.

Further, the Tribune is Chicago's big want ad marketplace, carrying far more want advertising and, as a result, attracting far more want ad readers than any other Chicago newspaper.

PREPARE DRASTIC CHANGE IN STATE ELECTION LAWS

Legislature to Get Bill This Month.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Drastic changes in Illinois election laws, to give taxpayers better voting methods and save them more than $1,000,000 a year, will be proposed to the legislature in Springfield this month, it was learned yesterday.

The changes recommended are the result of months of study by a commission created by the legislature in 1937. Walter F. Dodd, constitutional lawyer, is completing a report on the changes agreed upon by the commission.

Save Expense of Duplication.

The principal cut in election expense would be achieved by consolidating five elections now held on different dates—village, town, school, drainage district and park district. None of these is held in Chicago.

Under the proposed revised election code the same judges and clerks would conduct the consolidated elections, saving the expense of present duplication. The county clerk would be the main election officer.

Downstate school elections are conducted by the school trustees, who thus preside over their own election.

Power to Correct Errors.

Canvassing boards, which recount the votes and proclaim the winners, would be given the power to correct errors and frauds which they discover. They could call in judges and clerks of election and demand to know: "How did you arrive at this incorrect figure?"

Still another proposed change is the repeal of the absentee voters law. During its investigation the commission found that the privilege of absentee voting is being abused. At Mount Vernon, for example, a town of about 13,000 population, there were 800 absentee ballots in the last election.

"Absentee voting practically deprives party representatives of the right to challenge, which is essential to honest elections," said George Z. Barnes of Peoria, attorney for the commission.

Publish Election Notices.

Election notices and sample ballots would be published in newspapers, instead of being posted or handed out haphazardly. Members said that many thousands of dollars a year is wasted by posting notices that are torn down or washed away by rain.

The two shift system would be authorized for congressional primaries and elections to prevent errors caused when election judges and clerks work 24 hours or longer to complete the count. The judges would work 11 hours, and then tally clerks would come on duty to finish the job.

Last Monday the legislature made several changes in election laws. The Feb. 28 primary was thrown open to voters regardless of previous party affiliation. It was made mandatory for the Chicago election board to print and issue lists of registered voters in each precinct within ten days after the final day of registration.

Tonight leaders of the legislature and state department heads will meet with Acting Governor John Stelle at Springfield to consider the state budget for the next two years. Republicans are waging an economy campaign. Appropriation bills will be introduced this week and referred to committees, where efforts will be made to reduce costs of state government.

Grow Grass in Skyscraper to Feed Old Bill, an Actor

New York, Feb. 5.—[Special.]—Instead of putting old Bill, a white stage horse, out on pasture in Manhattan, they have put the pasture out for old Bill. The horse, which has appeared on the New York stage for ten years, eats his grass out of trays. Tender shoots are raised from dry oats in six days in a special contrivance. Every day a tray of grass is taken from the top and a tray of oats goes in at the bottom. Sprayed with a special, secret mixture by Abraham Cotton, who's in charge, the grass develops quickly. All this goes on inside a skyscraper.

Shoots Bandit

Vito Addante, showing how he shot bandit in his store.

Wilbur Barnwell, colored, who was shot five times by his intended victim when he tried to hold up a grocery Saturday night, was in serious condition yesterday in the Bridewell hospital. Barnwell is 32 years old and lives at 337 East 55th street. He drew two guns and menaced Vito Addante in his store at 369 East 54th street. Addante stooped, seized a revolver from under the counter, and came up firing.

CRIME GRADUATE OF BOYS' SCHOOL ADMITS 9 THEFTS

Stolen Skates Trip a St. Charles Parolee.

Louis Matye, in the opinion of policemen, is a prime example of the usual graduate of the St. Charles Training School for Boys. He has been a repeated parole violator. Now that he is of age the police hope to send him to Pontiac reformatory or Joliet penitentiary, where they believe he belongs.

Matye's record as an incorrigible was disclosed yesterday. He is nearly 22 years old and lives at 2342 Beach avenue. He was arrested Friday at the Humboldt park lagoon.

Policeman John Cesarski suspected his flashy skates had been stolen. They were. Matye confessed taking them, together with another pair of skates, $13, and an electric razor, from a hardware store.

Admits Nine More Crimes.

By yesterday morning Matye had confessed eight additional burglaries and the theft of an automobile. He implicated Vincent Gays, 21, of 1005 Sedgwick street. Gays was arrested and admitted he had accompanied Matye in crime. And like Matye, Gays is a product of St. Charles.

Penologists criticize the unwalled training school at St. Charles because it was designed for dependent children, not criminally inclined young toughs who now make up a large part of the 598 inmates. There is no segregation. The older, toughened inmates, it is charged, contaminate the others.

Matye, according to the police, first came in for correction at the Chicago Parental school. Three incarcerations there, between 1929 and 1933, served no purpose. On April 4, 1934, at the age of 17, Matye entered St. Charles, having been arrested for burglary.

He was paroled April 17, 1935. Then he was arrested for riding in a stolen automobile and spent sixty days in the Bridewell. While there he confessed another burglary and was returned as a parole violator to St. Charles Oct. 15, 1935.

Parole Him Second Time.

Again he was paroled on April 15, 1937. One month later Matye started a two months' Bridewell term for petty larceny. He had been arrested in another stolen automobile. Upon his release he joined the civilian conservation corps at a Wisconsin camp.

But his tenure there was short. After bullying younger boys, threatening one with a knife, he was discharged. Once more he was returned as a parole violator to St. Charles on Dec. 7, 1937. But he was almost 21, the age limit for a training school inmate. Two days after his birthday he was discharged on March 4, 1938.

"Matye was sent to the disciplinary cottage three times," said W. T. Harmon, managing officer of the school. "But that's not a bad record over a period of three and a half years. He has a very bad home background. His father died in a state hospital."

Gays' only record is for one term at St. Charles. At the age of 14 he was arrested for robbing stores. The Juvenile court sent him to St. Charles on Oct. 9, 1931. He was paroled Nov. 11, 1932. The school records show that on Dec. 10, 1934, he was committed to the state hospital at Elgin.

SUBURB OFFICIAL DENIES CHARGE OF TAKING BRIBE

Frank C. Stolfa, village president of North Riverside and a clerk in the county treasurer's office, denied yesterday that he had accepted a $5,000 bribe in awarding a water engineering contract.

The charge was made by Mrs. Arthur Krieg, widow of a former president of an Oak Park engineering and equipment company. She is seeking an accounting of the company's funds. On her application a warant was issued charging George C. Cameron, present head of the company, with bribery. The warant named Stolfa as the receiver of the bribe.

Cameron's company was included in a construction contract by a joint Brookfield-North Riverside water commission, Stolfa said. Brookfield has two members of the commission and North Riverside one.

FARMERS STORM AGAINST LAND SEIZURE BY U. S.

800 Families Ordered to Give Up Homes in 'Egypt.'

zens. They do not want to see the bones of their parents moved from fifteen graveyards that will be covered by water. They do not want to move to new scenes. They do not want to be unemployed.

"What will southern Illinois get in return for driving them out with a fraction of the wealth they once had? A duck pond, a little more than 20 feet at its deepest; a body of stagnant water that will become the greatest breeding ground for mosquitoes in southern Illinois.

"I never have been able to find out what use this so-called lake will be. It has no value in reforestation, soil erosion prevention, or flood control. No fish except mud cats will be able to live in any but the deepest parts. The government is building a swamp."

Traces Title to Great Grandfather.

The story of Fred Crain is typical of the experiences of these farmers.

"My great-grandfather, Maj. Hampton, settled here many years ago," Crain said. "He settled some of the land that I bought myself some years ago. I paid $35 an acre. I cleared the land and built improvements. I have been offered $75 an acre.

"Now the government has appraised my holdings at $51 an acre. Since I was notified I would have to go, I have driven 2,500 miles over Arkansas, Missouri, and Illinois. I have found nothing as good as my 108 acres for as little as $75."

All the farmers maintain they never were consulted as to what they considered a fair price. Many claim they never have seen an appraiser on their lands.

Land High in Fertility.

"My father has lived in his home since 1884," said Alonzo Bowyer, another farmer who is battling to save his place. "He and my brother, Jake, and I have kept our land in a high state of fertility. We have limed it. A few years ago the University of Illinois tested our production. On one acre we produced 72 bushels of corn.

"The government wants to take 80 of our 120 acres at $39 an acre. This is absurd. Our farm would be cheap at $100 an acre. But I always have told the government I do not want to sell at any price. My father has put his heart and soul into our farm, and why should he have to move for a silly thing like this dam?"

The Bowyer brothers said they do not know where they will go if forced off their farm. They are refusing to admit they are whipped. They remain hopeful that when the people of Illinois, and even President Roosevelt, understand the situation, the Crab Orchard lake project will be given up.

School Will Be Closed.

Ted Hill, a member of the Carterville High school board, declared he never had been interviewed about the value of his farm and had no idea what he was going to get in the condemnation proceedings.

"But I do know that our school will have to close unless the state takes over the task of supporting it," he said. "Even as things are, we are having a hard time. The three-fifths of the township under water won't pay any taxes."

Some farmers have received curtly worded notes informing them possession of their places is demanded by the United States. "If you want to stay longer, make arrangements with the lake project supervisor," was the gist of one paragraph.

One man who owns 320 acres, with a modern house, electric lights and running water, asserted that he had been offered less than $48 an acre, and that the place could not be duplicated for $75 per acre.

Offers $2,000 "Ransom."

"I would give the government $2,000 cash to let me stay here, rather than take what I am offered," he said. "My mother weeps at the prospect of being homeless, and I can't find any place like the one we have."

A few protestors have requested that their names be omitted in connection with criticism of Crab Orchard Lake. They fear reprisals from government agents in the area. Frank Burns is different.

"They want to take fifty or more of my hundred acres," he said. "They'll leave me the rest, with the buildings on it, but it's too small a place to make a living on. And I have no idea what I'm to get. I want my name used. I don't like this business and I don't care who knows it."

R. A. Coleman, who has no land to be condemned, but will be inconvenienced by the relocation of a highway to accommodate the lake, said "the Shawnee Indians never were treated as badly as our farmers," because the Indians could find more hunting grounds.

Protest to Keller.

Coleman has written a letter to Congressman Keller protesting the project. He said the outskirts of Marion and a large part of Carterville will be flooded in times of high water and that a water supply lake for the town of Herrin will be rendered useless. He added that coercive measures are being used to make the farmers sign up for their lands.

The proposal to move graveyards is meeting with discontented mutters. Strange tales are whispered of the difficulty of getting men to do the work. This part of the project is too close to human emotions to be met nonchalantly.

"I heard," said one farmer, "that a man who was thinking about taking on the job went to inspect a graveyard. While he was there, somebody fired a gun pretty close to him. He wasn't being shot at, but he never went back."

URGE WHOLE NEW SETUP IN RULE OF WASHINGTON, D.C.

Present System Illogical, Say Griffenhagens.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 5.—[Special.]—Complete reorganization of the government of the District of Columbia is recommended in a report made public today by Senator William H. King [D., Utah] and Representative Jennings Randolph [D., W. Va.], chairmen of the senate and house committees for the district. The report calls the existing organization complex, confused, illogical and cumbersome.

The problem of governmental organization in the district is unique, according to Griffenhagen and Associates, of Chicago, consultants in public administration and finance, who just have completed a nine months survey. This is because the district is a state, a county, and a city, which under the constitution must be governed by congress.

The way in which congress governs the district is shown in the Griffenhagen report, which says sixty-five local agencies, thirty-five federal agencies and more than fifty committees and boards have a voice in district administration.

One Corporate Entity Urged.

The report submitted to a senatorial committee of fifteen and a house committee of twenty-one recommends that the district be organized as one municipal corporation. Under this proposal it is suggested that congress delegate ordinance making powers and all functions of local government to a single administrative body.

The two congressional committees are urged in the Griffenhagen report to reorganize the present District of Columbia commission of three members and separate the legislative and executive functions. The commission was created under an act of 1878 and from time to time has received a few legislative powers from congress.

It is suggested that a legislative commission of five to seven members be appointed by the President, as now, or perhaps by a vote of the people. District of Columbia residents now have no voice in administration of the city, nor in the election of members of congress. The report urges that a single executive be named to exercise administrative functions.

Follow Lead of Other Cities.

Consolidation of 150 district agencies into seventeen departments is proposed which would provide the usual departments of finance, safety, health, public works, parks and recreation, such as other leading cities throughout the country maintain.

The reorganization proposal is linked closely with a controversy over district finances. Facing possible income or sales taxes to provide city revenue, residents of the district are complaining that congress should provide a larger share of the cost of the district. Congressmen in turn are complaining that the 5 million dollars appropriated annually is too much and that residents should pay more.

Reports that President Roosevelt favors any particular plan of organization have been denied. He is said to be awaiting the report before telling his preference. Some suggestions that the city manager plan be adopted have been heard.

NATION'S ELM TREES AT MERCY OF BLIGHT; U. S. CALLS FOR HELP

Washington, D. C., Feb. 5.—[Special.]—Thousands of elm trees have been killed in the middle and lower Ohio valley in recent years by a virus disease, the first to appear in shade trees of this country, the department of agriculture reported today.

The epidemic disease first takes form in a slight shriveling and brittleness of the leaf, and later rots the roots and inner bark of the trunk. Within a few months the tree may be dead. Citizens are requested to report the presence of the malady, which agricultural experts are seeking to study.

The disease first was called to the attention of the federal government at Ironton and Dayton, O. Three years ago it appeared in Chillicothe, O., where it has killed more than 1,000 elms. More recently it has become severe in Columbus.

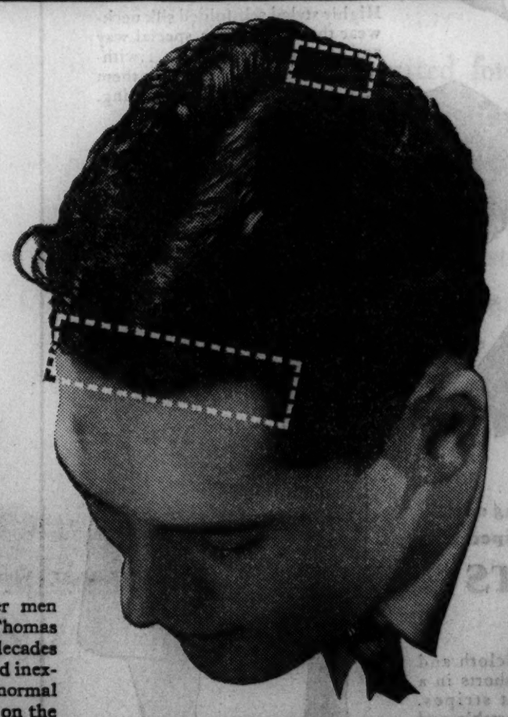
HOW TO AVOID BALDNESS

Watch these danger zones



DEFINITE warning signals always precede baldness. When your scalp itches or is laden with dandruff, and when your hair falls abnormally in the "danger zones" (forehead and crown) you are being warned that baldness is approaching. You must act at once if you wish to avoid baldness.

Do what a quarter-million other men have done — consult Thomas. Thomas treatment is proved by almost two decades of success — is reliable, dignified, and inexpensive. It ends dandruff, stops abnormal hair loss, and promotes hair growth on the thin and bald spots. Call today for a complete scalp examination. No charge is made for the examination nor for consultation and if you do not come within the scope of Thomas treatment you will be promptly told.

George Rector JOINS WILSON & CO.

Mr. George Rector, internationally famous chef, restaurateur and authority on good eating, is now a member of the Wilson & Co. staff

THE COMING of George Rector to the staff of Wilson & Co. links together two famous names in the eating world, one renowned for preparing good food, the other for producing it.

Mr. Rector will act as Director of Home Economics, cooperating with Eleanor Lee Wright in acquainting the consumer with the advantages and uses of Wilson meat and dairy products, and as consultant in the creation of new products.

The American people regard meat as the most important part of the meal. Naturally, American tastes appreciate the very best in meats. The amazing success of Wilson's Tender Made Ham proves that. It is only fitting, therefore, that America's home-keepers and meal planners should receive the best consumer education obtainable to aid in the preparation of Tender Made Ham and other Wilson Products.

No man in America is better suited for this educational work than George Rector. It is with sincere pleasure, therefore, that Wilson & Co. makes available the exceptional experience, knowledge and skill of America's great culinary expert and food spokesman, to housewives everywhere.

BEAUTILITY

By CALEB

THE impingement of the past upon the present frequently occurs at a point of startling contrasts and instructive object-lessons. The "Pageant of Transportation" at the Century of Progress Exposition graphically illustrated this fact—as did many another yesterday-and-today exhibit indicating the tremendous forward strides taken since the day when most articles of utility were designed without regard to their appearance.

The younger generations, of course, find in that era merely the materials of curiosity and amusement. But older readers recall its details only too clearly. The first Estes organ; the perennial album and whatnot; the first wax-cylinder phonograph; the first short-lived incandescent bulb; the first box-type telephone, with its proboscis transmitter, its receiver dangling at one side, and its crank on the side opposite for "ringing up." The huge iron kettles for boiling soap and sap—the smokehouse for home-curing hams—the cistern that supplied "soft water"—the first gargantuan zinc bathtub—the wood-burning ranges, the washboards, the "kindling pile," the pounding of carpets on the Saturday clotheslines . . . baking day, churning day, ironing day, marketing day. What a weary round of drudgery backgrounded the primitive, unlovely implements with which all this labor was accomplished, is still vivid in the memory of thousands.

Four factors, however, have banished yesterday's "Ugly Era" with dramatic suddenness: invention, advertising, design, and merchandising. Invention—the eagle-eyed, electric-minded offspring of necessity. Advertising—the versatile stepchild of mass manufacture and mass printing. Design—the aftermath of Art's deft adoption by commerce. And merchandising—the intensive utilization of all three, both to lift the standards and to enhance the cultural values of American living.

The net final result of this quartet of forces and influences needs a special word to summarize it. Such a word, perhaps, as Beautility, under whose banner the idealists and practicalists can now wage war on ugliness and drudgery from the same camp. And with a success never before dreamed of by either! For in appearance and in performance, today's wares, compared with yesterday's, have been literally transformed. And the merchandise march toward greater utility proceeds at a faster pace than ever . . . facilitated by the many highways of Beauty on which it travels.

CITY TAXPAYERS' TOTAL BILL TO BE LOWER FOR 1938

Levy Reduced for Second Consecutive Year.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

Chicago property owners will get a 1938 tax bill totaling approximately $178,600,000, compared with a bill of $181,058,138 for 1937. A preliminary computation showed this yesterday. It is the second consecutive year that combined taxes for the city, school board, parks, sanitary district, county and forest preserve have declined. The 1936 levies in Chicago totaled $186,344,718.

For the city government alone a 1938 tax rate of $9.17 per $100 of assessed valuation is indicated. This is 44 cents, or about 5 per cent, above the $8.73 rate for 1937.

Final Rate May Vary.

The final rate may vary slightly from the $9.17 figure, depending on possible late revisions of assessments. County officials are now completing work on the 1938 assessment books, preparatory to computing the 1938 tax bills. It is expected the bills will be mailed in the next six weeks.

The increased rate will be due entirely to a drop in assessed valuations. The 1938 assessments for the city will be about $1,948,500,000, or 6 per cent under the 1937 total of $2,073,976,391.

The 1938 taxes to be billed in Chicago for the county government and the park district will be slightly higher than for 1937, but the city, school board, sanitary district, and forest preserve taxes will be smaller, the preliminary calculation indicates.

Estimated 1938 Tax Extensions.

Following are the estimated 1938 tax extensions for each government compared with the actual billings for 1937:

	1938.	1937.
City	$ 70,148,000	$ 72,589,174
Schools	61,964,000	62,634,087
Park district	19,096,000	18,873,185
Sanitary district	13,250,000	13,273,449
County	12,276,000	11,614,267
Forest preserve	1,948,000	2,073,976
Total	$178,682,000	$181,058,138

The estimated 1938 rates for each government compared with 1937 follow:

	1938.	1937.
City	$3.60	$3.50
Schools	3.18	3.02
Park district	.98	.91
Sanitary district	.68	.64
County	.63	.56
Forest preserve	.10	.10
Total	$9.17	$8.73

55% for Operating Costs.

The city, schools, and park district levy only in the city. The other three governments levy outside the city, also. The total 1938 bill of the sanitary district in and outside the city is estimated at $15,618,000, the county $14,936,000, and the forest preserve $2,371,000.

This would make the total levies of the six governments $184,133,000. Approximately 55 per cent of this total—$101,166,000—would be for regular operating purposes. Bond principal and interest charges total $45,136,000, the school building fund $11,302,000, employés' pensions $9,920,000, city relief tax $5,846,000, and all other purposes $10,763,000.

Demands Right of India to Frame New Constitution

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

JALPAIGURE, Bengal, India, Feb. 5.—The political conference of the all-India congress passed a resolution today affirming India's right to frame her own constitution by means of a constituent assembly. It reiterated uncompromising opposition to the federation of Indian states and urged that the all-India congress give a six months' ultimatum to the British government in which to reply categorically to "India's national demand."

DEMOCRATS OFF FOR CAPITAL TO OPPOSE AMLIE

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 5.—[Special.]—Leading Wisconsin Democrats departed for Washington today to oppose confirmation by the senate of radical Thomas R. Amlie as a member of the interstate commerce commission. The delegation was led by William D. Carroll, chairman of the state Democratic committee, and Assemblyman Maurice Fitzsimons, chosen by the Democratic members of the legislature to make the protest.

They were accompanied by Willis Donley of Menomonie and William Shinners Jr. of Milwaukee, former state senators and others, who will protest Amlie's confirmation as individuals.

State Senator Harry Bolens, who, with Carroll and Fitzsimons were chosen by a legislative caucus to oppose Amlie, did not go. He was detained in Madison by legislative matters. "The delegation," Bolens said, "is armed with dynamite. It has evidence that Amlie was greeted as 'Comrade Amlie' at a communist meeting at Ashland auditorium at Chicago in September, 1934, and that he was hailed as a man who will be big in government after the revolution."

Return Colorado Parolee Caught at Parents' Home

Joseph Sharon, 20 years old, a parolee, was on his way back to Denver yesterday to stand trial there for several robberies and burglaries. He was arrested Friday in the home of his parents at 1620 West 18th street. Sharon, according to police, was paroled last December from the reformatory at Buena Vista, Col., after serving a year for burglary.

20,000 BUYERS TO SEE WOMEN'S SPRING FASHIONS

Chicago Apparel Makers Open Shows Today.

Twenty thousand buyers of women's clothing are expected to arrive in Chicago this week for the 1939 spring apparel market, which opens today.

Three separate groups of fashions are ready. In the wholesale district are the new offerings of the Style Creators of Chicago. At the Palmer House are the 10,000 styles, all heralded as "new," of the Chicago Wash Dress and Apparel association. At the Merchandise mart is a women's, children's and infants' wear and accessories market.

Fashion Note Is Victorian.

The Style Creators, who are offering a fashionable renaissance of the frills and flounces of Victorian days, will show their most intriguing designs at two style shows, tonight and Thursday night, in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

The wash dress association has a style show Wednesday night. All apparel, from play clothes to smart daytime dresses, from housecoats to lingerie, is washable, whether it looks it or not. The association, headed by John T. Pirie Jr., expects a decided upturn in business in 1939.

Plan Breakfast "Clinics."

The Merchandise mart is having breakfast style clinics tomorrow, Wednesday, and Thursday. At these, Katherine Ratto, merchandising counselor, will point out various nuances of fashion, stressing new ways of profiting by these.

The mart's clinics will include street clothes, beach and swimming clothes, afternoon and evening fashions for women and complete spring wardrobes for the very young.

THE RETURN TO THE FRENCH FRONT.

There was an American front line in France twenty years ago. The advance of that line and the thunder of Mr. Wilson's fourteen points, meaningless thunder, it is true, broke down the German defense. Thereupon France and England made a treaty so harsh, unforgivable, and unforgettable that it drove Germany into Naziism fourteen years later.

The treaty of Versailles was intended to be an irremovable weight on the neck of a conquered people who, nevertheless, were bound to recover their strength and who then could not be held down. It fixed boundaries which could not be defended morally or physically. The treaty made it impossible for the democracy, which was to be made safe, to stand on its infirm and shaking legs very long. The victorious allies took everything they could reach. America withdrew from participation in the unwise and scandalous division of loot.

The Germans were told that they could not have colonies, they couldn't have big guns, they couldn't have an army, they couldn't have an air force or navy, they couldn't manufacture arms or drill their citizens, and they couldn't join with little Austria. They might starve if they must—the blockade would help them to do it—but they must pay reparations until their republic sickened and died, and although they had been repeatedly told that it was their brutal, imperial government that was to pay for the crime of 1914, it was the people themselves who were knocked down into the deepest despair.

France and Great Britain not only tried to keep a yoke on Germany and make it meet a loan shark's exactions but they swindled the Italians, whom they had beguiled into double crossing the Germans and Austrians. Italy sold out for a price stipulated under signed contract, and Great Britain and France reneged on a large part when settlement day came.

Having swindled Italy, these unwise and grasping conquerors turned on their rescuers, the American people, and repudiated not only their war debts but their post-war debts. They don't call it repudiation, but America can read their semi-annual notes and ask itself what else the nonpayment can be. Uncle Sam, who had wreaths hung around his neck in 1917 by the grateful allies and a rifle stuck in his hand, became Uncle Shylock.

Hitler is the child of the treaty of Versailles, a progeny just as ugly as the parent. Mussolini can confirm the rumor that one of his parents was bolshevist Russia, now a favorite of the White House. He is strong enough to demand of France the rewards for perfidy which France would not give when the settlement should have been made. If war comes now it will be because Great Britain and France will not return spoils to Germany or keep their word with Italy. Is it for this that Mr. Roosevelt proposes conscription to remake our front in France?

LAWFUL AND LAWLESS PICKETING.

Legislatures and courts in many parts of the country are struggling to distinguish lawful from lawless picketing. In reality, a proper distinction is not difficult to draw; the question has become a troublesome one largely because in the clash of rival ambitions and interests the principles which should be followed have been lost to view.

Undoubtedly a right to picket should be recognized. It derives from the right which every American possesses to bring his ideas to the attention of other Americans. The right to carry a sign on the sidewalk before a shop, factory, or government office is not directly accorded in the federal or state constitutions but it can readily be inferred. The guarantees of freedom of speech, of the press, and of assembly were intended to enable men to reason together. Men free to exchange facts and arguments in printed form and by word of mouth could properly be denied the right to use force to redress their grievances. Courts exist as civilization's substitute for force in the adjustment of private disputes; just so, freedom of communication among citizens was intended among other things to make the resort to force unnecessary for the achievement of political and economic aims.

As long as picketing is conducted for the purpose of communicating information and for peaceable persuasion it should not be forbidden. The fact that it may provoke irritation among the persons picketed must be regarded as unfortunate but unavoidable. Freedom of speech and of the press results in similar irritations. The further fact that a human signboard is a rather poor means of conveying information or argument must also be overlooked. If the sandwich man wants to communicate his notions in that fashion, that is his business. He has the right to inform his fellow employés that a strike has been called. He has the right to see who is going to work and to plead with them to join the strike. To deny him that right is to encourage his side, in some measure at least, to abandon persuasion and turn to coercion.

Picketing becomes lawless when it becomes coercive; and it can be coercive either when the pickets actually employ violence against property and individuals or when the pickets are so numerous or so threatening that the citizen, for fear of them, is prevented from acting as his reason and conscience may dictate. The picketing of the Kohler plant a few years ago was plainly illegal and to call it mass picketing does not in any sense render it lawful. Pickets who block factory gates, carry clubs and other weapons, interfere with the movement of men and goods on the highways and railroads and engage in other warlike acts cannot demand protection of the law as if they were engaged in peaceful persuasion. Mass picketing as it is generally practiced is as lawless as any other kind of mob violence and should be put down without the slightest hesitancy.

The public official who, for fear of losing popular support, fails to use the state's force to suppress the mob is a coward, of course; and worse still, he is an enemy of free government. If elected officials will not maintain the supremacy of law over every challenging faction which resorts to force, the inevitable consequence will be the growth of private armies and private vengeance which in the end will overthrow the government itself. The totalitarian states stand as a warning; the action of the voters in Michigan who ousted their poltroon governor, Murphy, for yielding to the mob indicates that the political instinct of the American people is still sound. It is to be hoped that the courts and the legislatures will show an equal devotion to American principles of government.

The forms of picketing which present the hardest problems are those in which the pickets are found intruding in a quarrel in which they have no direct concern. Not infrequently cases are reported in which business houses are picketed by men who have no business there in the literal as well as the figurative sense. The actual employés may have decided to the last man that they do not wish to join the union which the pickets represent. Picketing in such instances is intended to keep customers away and by so doing to bring pressure on the employer to force his men against their wills to join the union or a particular union among several jurisdictional rivals. The purpose of this kind of picketing is not to inform or persuade, but to coerce. As the right to picket derives precisely from the doctrin that men must be allowed to make their own choices, without compulsion, picketing for purposes of coercion cannot be defended.

REPLY TO AN ULTIMATUM.

In the Voice of the People this morning we publish a letter from a Mr. McCabe, manager of an advertising agency in Cleveland. The letter was addressed to the business department of THE TRIBUNE, with a copy for the editor and publisher. Mr. McCabe, it appears, handles the advertising for the Greyhound buses. He suspects we are engaged in a conspiracy to injure the bus business because of some incidents which occurred on Winnie Winkle's recent overland trip. He threatens us with the withdrawal of the Greyhound company's advertising. He demands "an immediate and complete reply," including "explanations" and an outline of "your plans for the future in this connection."

That's easy. We're going to continue to edit THE TRIBUNE and Mr. McCabe is going to continue not to edit it. If Mr. McCabe thinks his client isn't getting its money's worth from advertising in THE TRIBUNE it is Mr. McCabe's duty to cancel the contract. It's all right with us either way, but if we get any more letters from Mr. McCabe like the last one we won't leave the decision to him. We don't like to do business with people who write impertinent and insulting letters and, happily for us, we are under no necessity to do so.

The reply to Mr. McCabe's ultimatum was easy, but he has presented us with a problem which is somewhat more difficult to solve. In the same mail which brought his letter we received a communication from a Mr. Durrstein of Harvey, Ill., who wrote in admiration of the skill of the Greyhound driver who took him through the snowstorm a few days ago. The temptation is to throw Mr. Durrstein's letter in the wastebasket, but that would seem to be unjust to our readers, and more especially to the driver and to the Greyhound company. On reflection we can see no reason for allowing resentment against Mr. McCabe's bad manners to deprive his employers and their skilful driver of the measure of commendation which they had earned. Accordingly, the letter from Mr. Durrstein is published.

DICTIONARY BOWS TO SLANG.

[Des Moines Register.]

How many would expect offhand to look in the dictionary and find a "dame" or a "skirt" for a lady friend, a "stuffed shirt" for a gentleman with whom we don't agree, a "false alarm," a "washout," or any similar expression? But there they are, marked Slang.

The new Dictionary of American English being compiled at Chicago, under the same editor as the Oxford English dictionary, will admit many such expressions. The latest volume will include "in cahoots," "on the carpet," and "carry on."

Institutions and systems and historic figures come and go, but the living stream of language flows on without asking leave of legislatures or dictators. The stage coach and the covered wagon are gone, but their language is still our own.

Years ago the dictionary makers were quite strict. They hung up a sign saying "Positively No Admission" to every fresh and vivid new word that welled up out of the fount of popular usage. They were on the watch all the time for slang, and wouldn't even admit it to the premises.

But as the years rolled by and the common usage hung on, the dictionary makers relented. They admitted slang, being content to label it as such. Most of the persistent slang is now in every good dictionary. A dozen random casts give 100 per cent results. They are all there, the dame and the skirt, the brass hat, the cop, the stuffed shirt, the false alarm, the washout. With the single warning, Slang, the dictionary allows one to "beef" when he is discontented, or if the doctor said no red meats, to "grouse."

The dictionary says that slang is any word "widely current but usually ephemeral." The fact that a word is in the dictionary is no sign that it is permanent. "Skiddoo" and "twenty-three" are in the dictionary, but nobody uses them today. But people still "beat it" and say "so long" as they did many years before. Students still bone for an examination as they did 50 years ago, but "bone" in the dictionary is Slang.

They are still on probation, these newcomers. Time, the all-powerful committee on admissions, will decide.

WORD WRESTLING: FINAL.

In the final bout of his astonishing exhibition, A. William Erdmann of Danville, the Dictionary Devastator, clinched his claim to the title of world's champion. He seized the big book in his teeth, worried it like a lion at its prey, and with one convulsive grunt tossed it out of the arena. Then, with hand outstretched to hush the tumult of applause, he proceeded to illustrate some of the finer points of wordsmanship, as follows:

9. A sentence palindrome. Q.—What did Adam say when he introduced himself to Eve? A.—Madam, I'm Adam. [You can read it backward as well as forward.]

10. Another sentence palindrome, and a perfect one, which follows spacing as well as words: Q.—What did Napoleon say after his first banishment? A.—Able was I, ere I saw Elba.

11. A sentence palindrome that might be used by a beet pickler: Red root put up to order.

12. A sentence containing all the letters of the alphabet with only six duplications, the shortest in existence: Pack my box with five dozen liquor jugs.

The winnah! A. William Erdmann, 1027 North Griffin street, Danville, Ill.

Several members of the audience claimed that the champion committed a foul in the second round and asked for their money back at the box office. [No chance!] They called attention to the third number on the Erdmann bill, "Only six or seven words have three double letters," and declared that there were many such words in the dictionary. A complainant calling herself "A Home Body" mentioned thirteen other words of this type. When this was reported to the mighty Erdmann, he scratched his massive brow in a puzzled way, and then said:

"Wait a while and I'll think up a new rule barring them words."

IN PRAISE OF CLEOPATRA.

Queen of the east and serpent of old Nile,
Whose pagan beauty 'gainst the yellow sands
Still, still has power the valiant to beguile
As when the Roman lingered on your strands,
Lured by the ecstacies that melt the will,
Enchanted by your perfumes and the thrill
Of pounding blood swift swelling to the tide.
Still, still you baffle judgment and become
The vision of a presence strangely strong,
Stooping, deceiving, winning odium,
Yet by some higher virtue borne along.
A queen, indeed, and serpentinely wise;
One Hades would send back to Paradise!

Duke Bakrak Is Called to Order.

Dear Dookie:—I notice in yer recent feeble attempt to be funny that you call me such unflattering names as "louse," "skunk," etc., which I regret, on account it stamps you as a humorist of the ordinary, low "garden variety," whereas I have graduated from such an' belong to the "grade A, pasteurized" group, in which we do not call people names. We merely insinuate that you are this or that. [Which you probably are.]

For instance, I can say [an' mean it] that I can locate more intelligent looking things than you just by rolling an old log aside—but am I calling you names? No! Or I can say that yer face [an' I have actually seen better ones on discarded alarm clocks] has already worn out 3 sets of false teeth, 1 head of hair an' most of yer friends. Or I can tell yer deer public about the morning [after the all-nite party] when the garbage man found you in the alley an' tossed you in his wagon an' the wagon got sore as hell an' tossed you right back at him—but am I calling you names? No!

I can claim that I have trapped handsomer things than you with a piece of cheese; I can say that anybody who ever wins you on a nickle punchboard is getting swindled; I can tell about the time the exterminator man called at yer apartment an' you got panic stricken an' tried to climb back under a base board [that was the time 7 cockroaches turned around an' says to you "Quit shoving, there'll be room for all of us"]—but am I calling you any names? No, Dookie, because I scorn such low tactics!

I trust you will not feel offended by this gentle criticizm, an' if it causes you to see the error of yer ways I shall consider my time well spent—YOU RAT!

WHAT GOES ON HERE?

It morns! Brown Leghorn's lover loudly wakes,
And waking casts the Hebrides astern.
What ho! Gadzooks! I tremble for your sakes!
Red lust prepares the sacrificial urn.

It duskles, whilst abaft the heaving grits
Sorrow's sad sucklings sob along the sea,
Where proud, perchance, a purple porpoise sits,
Leaving but shards and obese whelks for me.

A Little Lost Dog.

He was a frightened little dog, that January day five years ago when I found him. He had been lost so long that his nails were worn completely off and the pads of his feet were swollen and so sore he cried when he put them down. I picked him up and he cuddled his head down in the fur of my coat and whimpered, and from then on he had found a place in my heart as well as my home.

For five years he has given to us his loyalty and his love, and we in turn have given him everything we own. His the best chair in the house and the warmest spot. He is such a cocky little thing that Terry Dugan was the name that suited him best.

He must be nine or ten years old now, and at times he is a bit crippled in his legs but generally he runs around as if he were one year old. How we dread the time when we must sound "taps" for this gallant little soldier.

Charleston's Giant Oak.

So the largest oak tree of any kind in North America is in Indiana, is it? How about the Middleton oak just outside Charleston, S. C.? Diameter, 12 feet; circumference, 37 feet; spread, 144 feet; estimated age, 900 years.

[Note by Linemaster: Don't talk to us professional foresters about circumference unless you can say, B. H., which means breast high—4½ feet above ground level.]

That alleged Guiteau house [2-2-'39], way out on Grand avenue, needs investigation. The Chicago Historical society is unable to verify the statement of a contributor that Charles Guiteau, the assassin of President Garfield, once lived there. In fact, it cannot find the house at all, because the bearings given were too vague.

WHEN THE GALL BLADDER IS OBSTREPEROUS.

"FAIR, fat, and forty"—or thereabouts—describes the average gall bladder victim. Unfortunately, this structure is so situated that it may become infected from the blood stream or from the digestive tract. Then, too—as with any saccalculi may form within it and become sufficiently sizable to require removal.

While trouble in this area is not universal, it occurs too frequently for comfort and the accompanying colic may be intense. The distress usually begins in the pit of the stomach or a little to the right. Occasionally it may start in the back and become boring in nature as though some object were thrust through the body. Now and then it is mistaken for angina pectoris as it may radiate to the chest and the right shoulder.

Painful paroxysms are though to come on because the contracting organ is unable to force its contents forward whereupon it lets its violent passions rise. This, however, is not always true. If it is stretched mechanically—ballooned out—signs of indigestion will appear, but scarcely to be compared with the agony of the typical attack. In addition it should be pointed out that after a time these sieges are characterized not only by great tenderness but the bowel and the main outlet tube of the liver—the common duct—are both involved.

For diagnosis we have come to rely greatly upon X-ray films, but even in the absence of clear cut shadows—indicating the presence of concretions—disease may lurk within. The physician is often puzzled when the roentgenologist returns a report that the organ seems to be behaving well. Nevertheless, the patient exhibits the distinctive seizures, a sense of fullness after meals, and the usual indications of dyspepsia. Many a stone-harboring pouch has been known to look healthy because of the existence of so much normal membrane. The doctor is obliged, therefore, to fall back on the patient's history and the fact that he has perhaps observed the sufferer during one of his ordeals.

Some one has said that there is about as much gall bladder difficulty, uncomplicated by obstructions, as there is appendicitis, and it is true that the thin wall of the former can be greatly thickened as the result of repeated inflammatory episodes. As a rule, these individuals complain that their symptoms are aggravated by a full meal, particularly if coarse or greasy foods are eaten—sometimes after drinking two or three cups of coffee. A portion of the swallowed material may be regurgitated into the mouth with manifestations of heartburn or nausea.

At one time efforts were made to drain the duodenum and edibles low in fat and cholesterol were advised. But this was so opposed to common sense that it did not take physicians long to recognize that the thing to do was to make every attempt to assist the structure to discharge its contents. Modern treatment, therefore, is directed toward bringing about periodical emptying.

The plan recommended by Ivy consists of a diet with as much fat as the patient can tolerate. Bile salts are supplied to encourage and increase the output of the liver. Furthermore, a saline laxative, such as sodium phosphate, is employed—but not enough to bring on a cathartic action. With the same objective other authorities advise generous feedings of milk and cream combined with bile salts. A mild sedative may be helpful.

Under this management the added quantity of fat stimulates contraction with marked relaxation of the outlet to the intestine. While good results will not always follow, many cases have been cleared up with complete disappearance of the discomfort.

Surgical extirpation may be demanded should the region become the source of so much annoyance that well being is jeopardized. In skilled hands the operative precedure is attended with but little danger.

CANNED FOODS.

F. S. writes: What is your opinion of a woman who serves almost no fresh vegetables to her family? She prepares the canned variety by pouring off the liquid, which she believes to be stale and poisonous. She adds cold water and heats. Members of her family are thin and undernourished, with lots of colds, headaches, constipation, etc.

REPLY.

A reliable brand of canned vegetables should supply adequate nourishment. The juice is neither stale nor poisonous. On the other hand, a diet planned exclusively with this type of food in the long run would prove unappetizing. Fresh fruits and vegetables should be used in generous quantities. Why not can the cook?

STOMACH ULCERS.

S. F. P. writes: I have stomach ulcers, and every morning around 2 or 3 o'clock I wake up because of a gnawing distress in my stomach. If I drink a glass of warm milk I obtain some relief. Should I continue this?

REPLY.

The use of milk, cream, and crackers is of value. This material neutralizes the excess acidity of the gastric juice. The wisest plan is to place yourself in the hands of a skilled physician, who will outline a proper type of management which will include a special diet. Peptic ulcers do not like to be trifled with. They never have been known to behave when ignored.

NIGHT HEMORRHAGES.

A. R. S. writes: I have been X-rayed from head to foot in an attempt to locate the cause of bleeding from the mouth, which occurs only in the night. Is it possible for a certain condition to exist while sleeping that will not be evidenced by the X-ray?

REPLY.

X-ray films show only shadows of bone or very dense structures. A careful examination by a skilled physician certainly will disclose the source of the hemorrhages. Scurvy should be thought of, as well as some disease of the blood. The possibility of a lesion in the nose or throat should be investigated.

FINGER NAILS AND HEALTH.

D. M. writes: Is there any medical basis for the statement that the state of the general health may be ascertained by the curvature of the finger nails?

REPLY.

No. However, the health of the patient may be mirrored by the general condition of the nails. Systemic diseases may cause nail abnormalities.

SEE YOUR DENTIST.

H. H. writes: My 6 year old son's second teeth are beginning to appear behind the baby teeth. Since his first set are healthy what should I do?

REPLY.

Visit your dentist. Baby teeth should be removed if they interfere with the growth or appearance of the permanent set.

DILATION OF VENTRICLES.

W. A. writes: What causes hydrocephalus?

REPLY.

Some interference with the free circulation [and hence absorption] of the spinal fluid within the brain. This liquid is secreted slowly but constantly, and thus dilates the ventricles. These are open areas within the brain proper. Enlargement of the skull ensues.

USE OF DIGITALIS.

Mrs. P. writes: What effect does digitalis have on the heart?

REPLY.

It slows and strengthens the beat.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Persons who buy goods on the instalment plan are protected against unscrupulous merchants under the new Hire purchase act which went into effect in Great Britain last month.

If the customer has paid one-third the total cost of the commodity and fails into arrears in following payments, the merchant cannot seize it without resorting to court action.

The law affects some 5,000,000 persons who are buying furniture and clothing on the instalment plan, as well as millions more who are purchasing other commodities.

The act, which implements previous restrictions on the seizure of goods not completely paid for, makes it illegal for the merchant or his agents to enter a home and take possession of goods bought on the instalment plan.

Should a company seize goods in violation of this law the purchaser would be released from further payments and entitled to a refund of the money already paid.

Before the contract of purchase is made the company must inform the buyer of the cash price. The act also provides protection for merchants against abuses of his contract.

During the parliamentary debate on the bill it was diclosed that there was a daily average of 600 seizures of goods on which payments had not been completed.

Another law which went into effect in January was the young persons employment act, regulating the hours of work for those under 18 years of age.

The maximum work week cannot exceed forty-eight hours, with not more than six hours overtime any week or a total of fifty hours overtime during the year. A weekly half-holiday must be granted, and if Sunday work is done the holiday must be one day a week.

The act takes care of 125,000 boys and girls in offices, rail and road transport, factories, bakeries and miscellaneous trades. Violators are subject to fine up to $50.

ESTATE DISTRIBUTION.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Our brother died five years ago this month and left a two flat building but no will. There are four brothers left to share it. We appointed our youngest brother to look after things, but he don't manage things like we should prefer.

1. Have we the right to collect rent all these years without going through Probate court?

2. Can one put in a bill after five years and collect of which none of us know anything about?

3. Can the house be sold without putting it in Probate court?

4. How would we go about it, as we would like to get rid of our share?

5. Can I demand sale or buy up our share?

F. V.

1. You could force partition proceedings and in such proceedings the accumulated rent would be charged against his share.

2. In general, yes, but we cannot advise to advantage without having the facts more concretely before us.

3. It seems probable that a purchaser would insist on probate.

4-5. We advise you to employ an attorney and leave him to determine on the course of the action.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

RIGHT TO ESTATE.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Has a stepson the same right to a man's property as his own son? In case of death of the father and he leaves no will [2] how would his property be divided?

3. If most of it was left to the stepson, who did more for his upkeep than his own son, could this be contested?

4. If he died and his son claimed everything, could this step-son claim any share? I filed bankruptcy some years ago. The federal judge approved this.

5. Must I go back for any further notice or does that one appearance before the judge end such proceedings?

6. How long after bankruptcy can I own property or enter a business again without a former creditor causing trouble?

J. P.

1. No.

2. Between the blood heirs of the owner of the property. This is on the assumption that there is no will.

3. Of course the son could file a will contest, but he should not succeed unless he could prove undue influence.

4. Your pronouns are confused. We believe that the question is already answered.

5. You should have obtained a discharge within a year.

6. You can own property at once after the discharge, but if you mean that you have failed to obtain a discharge and that several years have gone by then the bankruptcy gives you no defense and your position for starting new bankruptcy proceedings is prejudiced.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DIVORCE SUIT.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. In a suit for divorce on the ground of habitual drunkenness, how many instances must be proven and over what, if any, period of time?

2. On the ground of desertion, what is the period of time of desertion?

J. C. C.

1. The statute does not mention a specific number. What would be necessary would depend on all the surrounding circumstances.

2. One year.

FROM A SCOT.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Chicago and your paper both have the reputation in some quarters of being anti-British in attitude. I had this in mind when I recently visited the United States for the first time, for Chicago was my first stopping place.

The week which I then spent was one of the most memorable in my life. Your people seemed never to stop doing things for us; in business, in shops, in homes, they tried—and succeeded—in making us feel thoroughly happy. Their kindness and helpfulness was something unforgettable, and later in my visit I had to come back and spend another few days, just to assure myself that it was real. It was.

Permit me to say that if your policy is anti-British it seems to me to be a most arrant failure, for to carry it out your citizens have to be rude, nasty, mean, and inhospitable. Those happen to be precisely the qualities which they lack, or, if any of you do possess them, they are well hidden.

You have a delightful way of finishing a conversation by saying "Come again," and that, I assure you, I mean to do. Meantime, in thanking you as my hosts, I offer my best wishes for the future prosperity of your great and handsome city.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES.

Harvey, Ill., Feb. 3.—In this discussion on the teaching of foreign languages some one recently extoled the excellence of the "direct" method and disparaged the inefficiency of our foreign language teachers who use the "indirect" method.

We foreign language teachers do maintain that the direct method is the most natural and the easiest, and we do use it in the giving of instructions, in the speaking of the simple language in the classroom, and in songs, but we must supplement it with additional indirect teaching, because we simply do not have the time to allow the natural method to wend its way. Does the average layman realize that we have only 360 classes [two years] of forty minute lengths, making 240 hours in which to exercise the pupil in all the complicated ins-and-outs of a foreign language? For the pupil lives in an English speaking world.

The foreigner, living here in our midst, learns the language eventually from hearing it and reading it about him. His every waking hour is an instruction hour in the English language. He has a daily lesson of twelve hours or more. We foreign language teachers have only the equivalent of twenty twelve-hour days with our students. What foreigner have you met who spoke English well after being on our shores less than three weeks? Yet the average student who has spent these twenty days with an average foreign language teacher such as myself, or any of my colleagues here, emerges with [1] a sound knowledge of the grammar of the language; [2] a fairly good pronunciation; [3] a passive vocabulary sufficient for reading simple novels and newspapers [to some extent], and [4] a rich cultural background. I would wager that the names of Haendel and Schiller mean more to the minds of my pupils than the names of Nevin or Hawthorne to the average foreign born person in America!

WHICH KIND OF COMMISSION?

Chicago, Feb. 3.—With all the storm and fury in full swing over the French and British plane contracts, my practical self is wondering who's in line for the commissions. Maybe Jimmie, huh?

ADVERTISING AGENT WANTS TO EDIT THE COMICS.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 1.—During recent weeks the Winnie Winkle comic strip in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has been featuring a series of uncomplimentary remarks about motor bus travel. This culminated in some unusually nasty cracks in the Jan. 19 issue.

We are conscious of the fact that you [the letter is addressed to our business office] cannot decide the editorial policy of your paper. However, the comic strip in question, and those of previous dates, were so bitterly antagonistic to bus travel and so harmful to the industry that we are wondering if some adverse influence is at work. Incidentally, the bus pictured in the attached photostat has the distinctive Greyhound design, and seems to have been drawn with a deliberate intent to injure the Greyhound Lines—one of your consistent advertisers.

We are exceedingly concerned about this series, and would like to know immediately if the cartoonist has been approached by representatives of somebody interested, from a financial standpoint, in injuring the bus business. As a matter of fact, we are aware that efforts of this kind have been made by certain organizations within the last several months, and the late development of the Winnie Winkle comic strip stands out as a surprising coincidence, in view of these efforts.

We might mention that the derogatory remarks placed in the mouths of his characters by the cartoonist are not only damaging but are false and misleading, since the type of bus equipment suggested by the cartoonist is as comfortable and restful in its riding qualities as that of any vehicle on American highways or rails.

As you have reason to know, we are firm believers in the value of THE TRIBUNE for motor bus advertising, but it can no longer have any appreciable value for us if your editorial policy seeks deliberately to tear down the work we try to accomplish in advertising.

It is needless to say that our bus clients are exceedingly indignant about this treatment at the hands of the Tribune-News syndicate and all the papers which carry this comic strip. It may be quite difficult for us to persuade them that any further advertising should be placed in these papers, for the simple reason that your editorial matter is designed to defeat this advertising.

We would like to have an immediate and complete reply to this letter, giving us your explanation of this anti-motor bus crusade and outlining your plans for the future in this connection.

T. R. MCCABE,
Manager, Beaumont & Hohman, Inc.

[Comment on this and the following letter will be found in the editorial, "Reply to an Ultimatum."]

A SKILFUL BUS DRIVER.

Harvey, Ill., Feb. 1.—I would very much like to publicly compliment the Greyhound bus system on the splendid service which they are today offering to the traveling public.

About 1 a. m., Jan. 30, I abandoned my car in Kentland, Ind., and returned to Chicago on a Pennsylvania Greyhound bus driven by R. Vinson, road conditions being such that further proceeding in an automobile would have been quite hazardous.

The manner in which the bus was driven into Chicago under the most unfavorable conditions was really amazing. In a blinding snowstorm, over icy pavement, and through drifts which completely obliterated any nearby landmarks, the driver drove his bus without a single slip or bump which might have caused any anxiety to his passengers. Those sleeping in their seats might well have been home in their beds, so few were the evidences within the bus that the case might be otherwise.

I have personally congratulated the driver on his masterful handling of his bus in the storm and would like to also do so publicly. His employer is also to be congratulated in securing drivers of such capability and courtesy.

Were the vehicles of motorists, who complain of buses as menaces to highway trafic, to be maintained in such condition and handled with the same capability, I am now certain that our highway accident rate would show a marked decrease.

VERNON L. DURRSTEIN.

ADVICE RECALLED.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—When my daughter entered college just before the world war her faculty adviser advised her to take German, as that was the language in which the most advanced literature, science, and culture was written. Yesterday Hitler told the world the German people could not rule themselves, but must have a dictator. So there!

DEMAND HARSHER JAPANESE POLICY TOWARD RUSSIA

Political Parties Stirred by Border Clashes.

TOKIO, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Political parties were drafting a joint resolution today demanding the government adopt a more aggressive policy toward soviet Russia. The action, in which all groups were taking part, apparently resulted from announcements of clashes last week on the Manchukuo-Siberia border. There were no further reports today of the border situation.

The Manchukuo government reported yesterday that, beginning last Tuesday, there had been four days of almost continuous fighting between soviet Russian forces and "Manchukuo guards" at Mengoskill, on the northwest border of Manchukuo and Siberia.

Soviet Troops Blamed.

The government at Hsinking, which has protested to Moscow, charged soviet cavalrymen began the attacks Tuesday, were beaten back by a border garrison, but continued skirmishing and maneuvering through Friday.

The soviet government on Wednesday reported a clash. It said 18 Japanese and Manchukuoan soldiers on the previous day had attempted to take a soviet island in the Argun river. The stream marks Manchukuo's northwestern boundary with Siberia.

1,000 Felled by Jap Bombs.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Chinese reports from Chungking today said Japanese planes caused an estimated 1,000 casualties among the populace of Wanhsien in a bombing raid. Wanhsien is on the Yangtze river, 135 miles airline northeast of Chungking, temporary Chinese capital.

The raid occurred yesterday and Japanese spokesmen confined their comment to the statement that heavy damage had been inflicted on the city.

Chinese reports said the bombers were bound for Chungking but, on being intercepted by Chinese aircraft, dropped 100 bombs on Wanhsien and then turned back eastward. Wanhsien is situated on mountainous terrain which makes difficult any quick escape of the populace.

Bomb Military Objectives.

Japanese reported their planes also bombed Kweiyang, capital of Kweichow province, yesterday, concentrating on military objectives and government buildings.

Chinese advices asserted there had been important guerrilla victories in the Yangtze valley and that Japanese in Shansi and Suiyuan provinces had been checked by counterattacks.

CORONER DIGS UP FIFTH BODY TO SIFT POISON PLOT

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 5.—(AP)—A fifth body has been exhumed in an investigation of a series of deaths attributed by officials to an insurance poison plot, Deputy Coroner Vincent Moranz said tonight. The name of the supposed fifth victim was not disclosed.

Mrs. Stella Alfonsi, 29 years old, widow of one of the alleged poison victims, Mrs. Corina Favato, who lived with two of the victims, and Herman Petrillo, 40, are being held as suspects in the deaths of Ferdinand Guiseppe, Di Martino, and Charles Ingrao and his son, Philip, 17. Policies totaling $20,000 had been taken out on the lives of the four men, Assistant District Attorney Vincent P. McDevitt said.

McDevitt said the murder and conspiracy charges would be presented to a grand jury within two weeks.

REPORT NICOTINE FROM SMOKING NEAR HARMLESS

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 5.—(AP)—University of Southern California scientists conclude from extensive research studies that effects of nicotine from smoking do not interfere with growth of the bones nor cause degeneration of blood vessels.

"We do not conclude that smoking causes disease of the heart," also said Dr. Clinton H. Thienes, professor of pharmacology. "In the presence of other ailments, however, nicotine may become a contributing factor."

The experiments conducted under Dr. Thienes' direction for some years indicates smokers' fat tissue is reduced by 10 per cent.

"Other ingredients found in tobacco smoking," he said, "include tar, carbon monoxide, and pyrdine. However, we are confining our experiments only to the effects of nicotine. Many smokers confuse the smoke stain resulting from blowing onto a handkerchief with nicotine when it is merely tar."

NEW JUGO-SLAV PREMIER NAMED; PICKS A CABINET

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 6 [Monday.]—(AP)—Dragisha Tsvetkovitch, political leader who is described as a Serb willing to listen to the vigorous complaints of the Croat minority, became premier of Jugo-Slavia today. Tsvetkovitch, who is 46 years old, took the oath of office at 1 a. m. and presented to the regent, Prince Paul, a politically balanced cabinet. The new premier succeeded Milan Stoyadinovitch, who resigned unexpectedly yesterday when his cabinet split on the Croat issue. Stoyadinovitch had been premier since 1935. He was dropped from the new cabinet. The new cabinet includes two Croats, two Mohammedans, and two Slovenes representing politically dissatisfied minority elements. The Croats in particular have been demanding a federation of autonomous states.

New York, Feb. 5.—[Special.]—The Hudson river piers were full of ocean liners yesterday, representing a tonnage totaling 355,373. FOOD SUPPLIES GROW SCARCE IN ALASKAN TOWNS

CORDOVA, Alaska, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Supplies of fresh foods were almost exhausted today in stores of many Alaskan towns which were cut off from direct steamer contact with the United States because of a labor dispute in Seattle. Butter and egg supplies were sold out here.

Ketchikan and Juneau merchants also reported shortages. Greenstuffs were becoming increasingly scarce. Staple supplies, however, may last about two weeks.

The three-day old dispute in Seattle began when members of the Masters, Mates, and Pilots union walked off ships preparing to sail for Alaska. The walkout resulted in cancelation of steamship service by three companies.

Gimbel, who has logged more than 1,600 solo hours as a transport pilot, was at the controls of their four-place Beechcraft biplane. His wife, who recently qualified as a wireless operator, will be in charge of the radio during the trip, which is expected to take three weeks.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL

Adequate and Dependable

Last year the Illinois Central System met the needs of business and individuals by carrying 9,412,956,488 tons of freight one mile and 604,649,960 passengers one mile.

That's adequate and dependable transportation.

To serve so completely and successfully is the ideal of a common carrier. It means we must be prepared to carry anything, any time, anywhere we go.

Nor may we discriminate. We must take care of all.

Adequate transportation requires track, power and cars in volume ample for the business. Dependable transportation requires loyal, willing, intelligent operation.

The proper combination of these factors is a large order, but we filled that order last year, and we will fill it again.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

by Frank Ridgway

'Locusts' Are Coming!

February 5, 1939.

THIS is locust year. For the first time in seventeen years brood thirteen of the periodical cicada, erroneously called "seventeen year locust," is scheduled to appear in the Chicago region this summer.

W. P. Flint, state entomologist, said that while these insects are called locusts, the term should be applied only to grasshoppers.

The last appearance of brood thirteen was in 1922. Entomologists do not doubt that the insects will appear on schedule in May and June. For 300 years the life of this hermit of the insect world has been charted by scientists and other observers. They find that the cicadas come out with great regularity.

Expect Heavy Brood.

This year's brood is expected to be heavy. The insect will be seen over most of northern Illinois and as far south as Edgar and Mercer counties in the central part of the state. It also will appear in many counties in eastern Iowa, in southern Wisconsin, around the south end of Lake Michigan in Indiana, and in the extreme southern part of Michigan. A few are expected in Kentucky, the Virginias, Maryland, and Pennsylvania.

There are two races of the periodical cicada—the seventeen year race and another that appears every thirteen years. Scientists have found no differences in the two except that one remains underground in the larva and pupa stages four years longer than the other.

Somewhere Every Year.

Every year is locust year in some part of the country. There are seventeen different broods of the seventeen year race and thirteen broods of the thirteen year race. The broods have been cataloged by Roman numbers. Broods Nos. 1 to 17 compose the seventeen year race. The thirteen year race is numbered from 18 to 30.

There is overlapping of the territories occupied by the two races and also by the different broods. In some sections, however, the locusts only appear at thirteen or seventeen year intervals, indicating the presence of only one brood.

Not Found in West.

The periodical cicadas are not found in the western part of the United States. They live mainly in the wooded regions from the Atlantic coast westward to central Kansas. Broods of the seventeen year race are found chiefly in sections north of the Ohio and Missouri rivers and the thirteen year broods south of these rivers.

The first recorded appearance of the seventeen year race of the cicada was in 1634 when the colonists at Plymouth noted large swarms of the insects. This has now become known as brood fourteen. It has been seen regularly seventeen times and is due again in 1940. None of the old timers in Massachusetts doubt that the insects will again arrive on schedule. This brood extends westward to the Mississippi river, covering all or parts of thirteen states, including northern Illinois.

Anne Winston Is Engaged to Carleton Ellis

BY JUDITH CASS.

At a small tea at home in Lake Forest yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Farwell Winston announced the engagement of their daughter, Anne, to Carleton Ellis Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Ellis of Montclair, N. J.

Mr. Ellis came to Chicago for the week-end from Toledo, O., where he is engaged in business. Previously he worked for two years in Chicago and made his home with a group of bachelors who spent each summer in Lake Forest.

Miss Winston attended the Foxcroft school and spent a year abroad with Miss Stout's Traveling school. She made her début jointly with Miss Betty Keith, Stanley Keith's daughter, during the Christmas holidays two years ago.

Last summer the rôle of playing hostess to Prince Bertil, son of Crown Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden, fell to Miss Winston. Young Prince Bertil, who accompanied his father and stepmother, Princess Louise, on an American tour, was a guest of the Winstons at a dinner at the Onwentsia.

Mr. Ellis is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and of the University of Zurich in Switzerland. No plans have been made for the wedding, but Mr. Ellis will take his bride to Toledo to make their home.

John L. Senior Jr. Engaged to Connecticut Girl.

From Roxbury, Conn., has come an announcement of interest to Chicagoans for it concerns the engagement of Miss Vera Ayres to John L. Senior Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Senior of Roxbury and Belleair, Fla., formerly of Lake Forest. The announcement was made by Miss Ayres' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis O. Ayres of Wicklow, Roxbury, on Saturday at the wedding reception of another daughter, Margaret, who was married that afternoon to J. Gordon Tompkins of Newburgh, N. Y.

Miss Ayres was graduated from the Ethel Walker school at Simsbury, Conn., and from Smith college, at which she finished last June. She made her début in New York in 1934.

Mr. Senior, who is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Foster Cowham of Chicago and Jackson, Mich., is a graduate of the Brooks school and of Harvard university, at which he was a member of the Owl, Hasty Pudding, Speakers', and Varsity clubs. His sister, Mrs. Morton Fearey, the former Mary Senior, was a Chicago debutante of the 1932 season.

The Feareys and their infant daughter, Julie, live in New York. Mr. Fearey is a cousin of the former Mary Reed, daughter of Mrs. Lansing P. Reed of Cold Spring Harbor, Me., who was married Jan. 28 to Roger B. Shepard Jr. of St. Paul, nephew of Mrs. Potter Palmer. No date has been set for the Senior-Ayres wedding.

Miss Wiley and Miss Young to Become Brides Saturday.

Miss Margaret Wiley and Miss Katherine Young, whose engagements by coincidence were announced on the same date, have selected also by coin-

Hans L. Heniot Well Received as Conductor

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Hans Levy Heniot, a one time Chicagoan who has spent the last six years studying and performing in other countries, served as guest conductor of the Illinois Symphony orchestra yesterday. The Great Northern theater held a large number of relatives, friends, and well wishers—including the young musician's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Heniot Levy of Chicago.

In a program which included not only standard works of Wolf-Ferrari, Debussy, Ravel, and Beethoven, but also a whole group of new songs by Radie Britain, Mr. Heniot showed himself at home in a bewildering variety of styles. Wolf-Ferrari's overture to "The Secret of Suzanne" boasted a great rhythmic ping; the Debussy pieces were flexible, langorous, legendlike; Beethoven's Seventh symphony possessed a sturdy, four square character which did not preclude a care for small details.

Mr. Heniot is a self-effacing, neutral looking man who depends entirely on his musical skill and not at all on extraneous gestures, postures, and the like. He was cordially received.

Soloist in the Radie Britain songs was Esther Hart, soprano.

Trudi Schoop and her dancing comedians, a diverting company of "character" types recruited mostly in central and northern Europe, presented the dance comedy "The Blonde Marie" at the Civic theater last night. This is the story of the servant girl whose extraordinary run of luck brings her musical comedy fame, a rich husband, and divers other such blessings.

To the jittery music of Paul Schoop, played upon two pianos by Lothar Perl and Max Fickel, these jolly visitors mimed their way competently through the eight scenes of the comedy. In their course they managed to hold up to not too loving laughter a vast number of human types—the dignified suburban housewife, the simpering Great Tenor, the lawngitic soubrette, the chorus girl with the frozen smile.

Hazel Griggs, Texas born pianist who played a recital at the Studebaker theater yesterday, is an accurate, finely schooled musician. Her Brahms group raised the suspicion that she distrusts round, rich tone quality and a sensuously beautiful melodic line. A witty, rhythmic, percussive little piece like Debussy's "General Lavine" found her at her best.

CAMRYN DANCE RECITAL

BY CECIL SMITH.

Walter Camryn gave his first local dance recital in the Goodman theater yesterday afternoon, with the assistance of a galaxy of young female dancers, including such skilled professionals as Eloise Moore and Bettina Rosay. Mr. Camryn's work on the opera stage is well know, for he was a featured artist with the Chicago City Opera company ballet until the company stopped using Chicago dancers.

Yesterday's program kept a cordial audience in a constant state of enthusiasm, without providing it with anything especially important to remember afterward. Mr. Camryn is a well schooled, facile dancer, capable of employing the ballet technique with a good deal of assurance and precision. Miss Rosay, formerly a leading ballerina at the opera, and Miss Moore, a fluent exponent of a more modern style, added an unfailing touch of quality.

But such poverty of invention as characterized the whole afternoon! Even "Mercure," danced to a celebrated score by Erik Satie and choreographed especially for Mr. Camryn's group by Bentley Stone, was vapid in content and poorly pointed for theatrical effect. There was little definition of mood, so that at times it was necessary even to guess whether some of the episodes were intended humorously or seriously. Never for a moment did "Mercure" deliver a single real wallop.

Most of the short divertissements were similarly innocuous, though Mr. Camryn displayed an interesting pantomimic gift in "Casey at the Bat," a baseball number, and later amused his audience with some cleverly designed comic masks.

General Platoff's Russian Don Cossack choir, directed by Nicolas Kostrukoff, introduced its virile singing to Chicago at the Auditorium theater yesterday. The chorus is smaller than the similarly named group conducted by Serge Jaroff, but is musically a dead ringer for it. The music is invested with the same fiercely dramatic style, with an unbroken chain of highly theatrical swellings and softenings of tone.

On the evening before his departure for extended study in Kaunas, Lithuania, Victor Bender, sang his farewell to his friends in Kimball hall last night. He possesses a light, agreeable lyric tenor voice and a good feeling for melodic expression. The few remaining inconsistencies of production no doubt can be remedied in Lithuania as well as here. Symeta Zimmerman, pianist, and the chorus Pirmyn shared in the concert.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

A story Phyllis Bottome, the English writer, who was in town last week, told Joseph T. Ryerson had to do with a fishing expedition at which Hitler fished, unsuccessfully, on one side of a stream, and President Roosevelt, across the river, pulled out catch after catch.

"Why do you suppose I don't catch any, while you are so successful?" Hitler called to President Roosevelt.

"That's easy, Adolf," President Roosevelt called back. "On your side they are afraid to open their mouths."

* *

An anti-administration man who heard the tale retorted, "And on Roosevelt's side of the stream they were a lot of suckers."

Miss Bottome lived in Nazi Germany for a time, and she related an incident that occurred in Berlin. An elderly Jew was routed from his house, given broom and pail and told it would be his job to scrub the streets and gutters in his block, beginning immediately.

"Give me ten minutes and I'll do as you say," agreed the Jew. He disappeared inside his door and emerged shortly afterward wearing the uniform of a German soldier, his breast covered with war medals. The Nazi gang, shamed, dispersed, Miss Bottome said.

French Ambassador Addenda.

The town was still discussing functions for the French ambassador, Count de Saint-Quentin, over the week-end. One of the most interesting occasions was the luncheon at room 100 at the Chicago club, where the ambassador talked freely and answered one or two pointed questions of international interest. Most amusing incident of his busy stay in Chicago was his arrival at the Casino club at the dinner in his honor, a little late, with his coat tails still pinned up with safety pins, just as they came from his luggage. M. Rene Weiller, the French consul general entering behind him, helped unpin them.

Good Morning!

It's a big, beautiful, melodramatic—and often very childish—spectacle in which the humble water boy of Kipling's poem is about as much in evidence as a healthy opera star's understudy.

Granting that the movie was only "suggested" by the ballad, why couldn't they have called it something else—"In the Toils of the Thuggees" for instance—or IF "Gunga Din," why couldn't they, at least, have let Din tell the story?

The aforementioned thuggees were a terrible cult of stranglers that the authors resurrected to provide those British soldiers and buddies, Cutter, MacChesney and Ballatine, with a purpose in life—namely, their annihilation . . .

The picture has reels of gorgeous scenery, loads of thundering mass action, slithers of man to man combat, lots of noise, horseplay, extras, and a dribble of romance.

Without doubt, it is an expensive and impressive show. And, without doubt, it is two hours long!

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

For Sale—Pictures.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 5.—Within the last seven days six major studios have previewed eight pictures that must have cost no less than $8,000,000. 20th Century-Fox, a few hours ago, gave us "Three Musketeers," directed by Alan Dwan, while Paramount was previewing "Café Society," directed by W. H. Griffith. The preceding night Walter Wanger gave us "Stage Coach," directed by John Ford. Selznick checked in with "Made for Each Other," directed by John Cromwell. Warner's previewed "Yes, My Darling Daughter," directed by Bill Keighley. R-K-O's George Stevens turned over "Gunga Din" to the mezzanine jury. M.-G.-M. issued "Idiot's Delight," directed by Clarence Brown. 20th Century-Fox opened the week's celluloid procession with "Tailspin," directed by Roy Del Ruth.

Of particular political interest to Hollywood, because the Ritz Brothers had just called off a sitdown strike at their studio, was "The Three Musketeers." Fortunately for the Ritzes, this is the best thing they've ever done on the screen, and it proves, if proof were needed, that they should never be starred in a picture.

"Stagecoach," and this is only one man's opinion, was the most intriguing of them all, because it was a throwback to the cowboy and Indians sort of thing, for which the screen is so admirably suited. It was important, too, because in the picture was John Wayne, who has stardust sprinkled all over his lounging frame.

In the week's spread of previews quite a section of the town has been represented. Of the glamor girls, Connie Bennett, Alice Faye, Madeleine Carroll, Carole Lombard, Claire Trevor, Priscilla Lane, Nancy Kelly, and Norma Shearer were in action. You could have your choice of heroes, too—Gable, Cary Grant, Doug Fairbanks Jr., Fred MacMurray, Jeffrey Lynn, Jimmy Stewart, Kane Richmond, and John Wayne. In support of them were such seasoned troopers as Edward Arnold, Charles Coburn, Thomas Mitchell, Donald Meek, Victor McLaglen, Anny Devine, Roland Young, Fay Bainter, May Robson, Sam Jaffe, John Carradine, George Bancroft, Charles Farrell, Joan Davis, Montagu Love, Lucille Watson, Genevieve Tobin, Burgess Meredith, and Joseph Schildkraut.

Norma Shearer's performance in "Idiot's Delight," Carole Lombard's performance in "Made for Each Other," and Claire Trevor's portrait in "Stagecoach" seemed to be the best of the seven days' offerings. Gable, Cary Grant, Jimmy Stewart, and John Wayne topped the heroes. Yet it was in the supporting ranks that gems of characterization came to life—Mitchell's lusty doctor in the Wanger pulse-hopper; Meredith's impassioned idealist in "Idiot's Delight"; Meek's meek whisky salesman in "Stagecoach," and Carradine's Virginia remittance man in the same flicker; Coburn's ear-trumpet lawyer in "Made for Each Other," and Roland Young's characterization of the bewildered and blundering friend in "Yes, My Darling Daughter."

Pictures owe much to their supporting players. The stars can strike a key, but it is the supporting players who give the tone fullness and roundness. In the hands of such performers as Coburn and Mitchell and Meredith and Meek and Carradine, pages of a script come to life and through them walk human beings, rather than creations of a typewriter keyboard.

Two famous names of pictures returned to action during the seven days—George Bancroft, as the marshal in "Stagecoach," and Charlie Farrell of "Seventh Heaven" fame in "Tailspin," which took one.

A Stranger in the Dark

By Frank R. Adams

(Copyright: 1939: By Frank R. Adams.)

SYNOPSIS.

The hero, pursued by Detective Mike Clancy, is stopped in a Chicago railway depot by a young man, apparently dying, who gives him his wallet and baggage check to get him his medicine. He gets the sick man's bag, then, seeing the man being carried away on a stretcher, he uses the man's ticket, and is on his way to Clovis, N. M., as John Bowman—an innocent fugitive, having taken the blame for missing bank funds to save his father. Before reaching Clovis he confesses his identity to Sheriff Tom Johnson, who boards the train to welcome John Bowman, whose father, Pete Bowman, is dying and longs to see the son separated from him by divorce since babyhood. The sheriff persuades him to take on the role. John's sister, Mary, and her fiancé, Charles Ferdinand, manager of her father's ranch, meet him in Amarillo and fly him to the ranch in Charles' plane. Mrs. Lodge, wife of Pete's physician and guest, is with them. Our hero falls instantly in love with Mary and dislikes Charles, a handsome show-off, who is the pet of Pete's sister, Matilda, who had loved Charles' father. The hero meets paralyzed old Pete Bowman, kept a virtual prisoner by Matilda. Pete asks him to stay and help Mary, and gives him his guns. Charles is carrying on an affair with Mrs. Lodge and even Dr. Lodge knows about it. In the middle of the night Pete sends his nurse for "John" and has him open the safe and burn a paper. Next morning Charles and Mary are to be married. Detective Clancy appears after the wedding, just as word comes that old Pete has died.

INSTALMENT XXV.

THE MISSING WILL.

Before we reached the house a whirl of dust in the middle distance announced the arrival of a vehicle of some sort. We waited to see what it was.

In a minute it was there—the motor ambulance of the undertaker whom I had summoned.

Three tall men got out of the front seat. They looked alike, long faced, slightly sallow for that country and stooped in the shoulders, but one of them was much older, obviously the father of the other two.

"Made it in forty-five minutes," said the older man proudly. "We aim to give the fastest undertaking service in the country."

He singled me out. "You're the son of the deceased, ain't you? My name's Siles, Milton Siles, and these here are my two sons, Samuel and Jasper. They're both learnin' the business." As an afterthought he added, "Terrible sad about your father but we been expectin' it for some time. Now, if you'll show us the way we'll be gettin' at our sorrowful duties."

None of us, I think, were quite prepared for the sight which met our eyes when we entered Pete Bowman's room.

The floor was littered with papers, old ledgers, bundles of letters and documents and in the middle of it all stood Aunt Matilda, her hair for once disordered and hanging in lanky wisps around her face.

The door of the safe stood open!

Clancy was the first to speak. "But I sealed that safe, ma'am."

She looked at him with impatient scorn. "What do I care about you or your piffling seal? Charles," she appealed to her idol, "it's gone—that thief has stolen it." She pointed at me and almost shrieked, oblivious to that long, bony body that lay under the sheet on the bed.

"Wait a minute, Aunt Matilda," said Charles soothingly. He put his arm around her. "Calm yourself. What's gone?"

"My brother made a new will last week," she said distractedly. "I told you about it—in his own handwriting. I helped him."

"A holograph will," I explained to Charles who didn't seem to understand. "It wouldn't be legal anyway if she helped him make it, so it doesn't matter if it is lost."

"How do you know anything about it?" the old woman demanded.

I couldn't tell her just then that I knew a good deal about wills from having served an apprenticeship in the trust department of our bank. "I just happen to have read about such things," I said.

"You know because you destroyed it."

"Why," I said patiently, "should I want to destroy anybody's will?"

"Because it disinherited you and made Mary the sole heir—that's why."

"Even if it did I shouldn't have minded," I told her which was certainly the absolute truth.

Of course I knew by this time that the paper which I had burned the night before at Pete Bowman's direction was undoubtedly the document she was searching for but my conscience was clear in that matter at least. I hadn't been aware at the time what it was that the dying man had wanted destroyed. For all I knew it might have been an old love letter.

"Maybe she's just puttin' on an act," contributed Clancy without any particular tact. "She's the only one who's been at the safe and——"

Aunt Matilda turned on him. Stronger men than Clancy have quailed before Matilda Bowman's baleful stare.

"Be quiet, you fool!" she said. "Do you think I'd destroy something that it has taken me years to get?"

In her anger the old woman was talking too much. Charles knew that. "Let's not speak about it any more right now. You and I will discuss it later."

He was picking up the books and papers and stowing them methodically back into the safe. I started to help but Clancy touched me on the arm.

"Better not, fella. I can be a witness you didn't touch a thing."

"Thanks, Clancy."

"It's a pleasure, Mr. Bowman."

Meanwhile Mr. Siles and his two sons were standing ready to remove the body as soon as the litter of papers was cleared up. The younger men had brought along the conventional covered basket.

"Will you come over to my place in the morning, Mr. Bowman," said Mr. Siles unctuously, "and pick out the casket?"

Aunt Matilda looked up sharply. "There'll be no casket."

At first I thought it was just another example of her peculiar parsimony but when she continued I knew that she was sincere.

"My brother was born in a wagon-box coming west and it has always been his wish to be buried the same way."

"Buried in a wagon-box?" echoed the astonished mortician.

"Yes. Why not? Our father was and Pete has always wanted to lie right beside him on the hill at Rainbow Basin here on the ranch."

"But, madam, that ain't legal. The health authorities—"

"That's where he's going to be buried. Let's see somebody try to stop it. You do as I tell you and I'll take the consequences. I nursed him through his last illness and I'm going to see that he's buried where he wanted to be. We've got his own wagon-box. It'll be ready."

For once in her life Aunt Matilda was truly and regally tragic. She spoke as the last of a vanished generation.

When the undertaker turned to me helplessly I said, "Do as she tells you. You're only here to carry out orders."

Mr. Siles shrugged his shoulders. "Just as you say, Mr. Bowman. But how about gettin' somebody to say a few words over him at the obsequies?"

"Surely the local minister——" I began.

Mr. Siles interrupted me. "Only trouble with that is the Reverend is kin of the Moshers and they think most o' this property really belongs to them. He might not be able to let himself out like he ought to."

"Never mind that," said Charles. He directed his next remark to me. "If you'll permit me I'll conduct the service." He smiled, reading my thoughts. "I know you think I want to be in the limelight, as usual, but just this once it isn't the case. I promise you that I will do every reverence to his memory. It just happens that he is the only man in the world who has been very kind to me."

He spoke with deep sincerity. I believed him.

To the undertaker I said, "That's the way it'll be, Mr. Siles. The Bowman's bury their own dead."

It was late that night when we were finally called to a supper that no one wanted.

The mess hall seemed like an echoing cavern with only the five of us, Aunt Matilda, Charles, Mary, Clancy and myself, sitting at the big table.

Most of the help was gone, too. There was one waitress to serve and H'Wang, the cook, was alone in the kitchen.

All the lights were kept on for cheerfulness but they did not have that effect.

The manufactured conversation was dull and spiritless. Aunt Matilda and Charles had been closeted in her room ever since the undertakers had gone away. He had apparently induced her to say no more about the missing will. She scarcely spoke to me and ignored Clancy completely but at least she was not actively antagonistic.

Spoiling a Child Handicaps Him for His Whole Life

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I certainly need any help and information you can give me. I had a young Trojan born last Tuesday—8 pounds 10 ounces, and already I'm beginning to see where I'm going to have trouble.

"You see, Mrs. Bevans, he is the first grandchild, and great-grandchild, and my goodness, such a fuss has been made, especially as he is so big and husky. Would you help me keep him from getting spoiled by all these loving relatives, who will be wanting to pick him up if he sighs? Will you also tell me how I can teach him to be friendly when anybody strange comes near him? I hate to think of him screaming whenever any one other than his father or I come near him."

This letter is being used today because it seems to me I never have heard, at short intervals, so many tales of little boys and girls spoiled by excess of attention—adoring attention from parents, or loving relatives. And oddly enough, seldom have I happened to hear so many tales of grown men and women who were so badly spoiled when they were little or growing up that they can't adjust themselves to marriage.

One young man is nearly driving his wife to leave him, and quite unwittingly, because he wants to be waited on, catered to, babied. Another, a mature married woman, can't adjust herself to moderate means. Everything was lavished on her—attention and possessions—and she is bitter in bemoaning the lack of luxuries in her life today.

These are only two instances and you may say they're extreme, but they're neither as rare nor extreme as you may think.

This young mother is wise to want to forestall the ill effects of adoring relatives concentrating their attention on her baby, and probably giving him everything he wants or asks for. Her first and most important step in this direction will have to be to enlist, somehow, their coöperation. No matter how good her own ideas and her husband's may be, she can get nowhere unless she can get the family to fall in with her management of her little son. I've seen it done—grandparents and others eventually being convinced that a real interest in a little child and a really intelligent love can be felt and shown in a way that enriches his life, not hampers it.

Roquefort cheese, with its tangy flavor and delicate green mold, has three places in the menu. Most often it appears as some part of the appetizer course, and scarcely less frequently it concludes the meal, with crackers or fruit. In the middle of the menu it may appear as a flavoring ingredient in the salad or salad dressing.

Ignoring, for a moment, Roquefort as salad or dessert, let's consider a few of its variations as appetizer.

ROQUEFORT CHEESE APPETIZERS

CANAPE SPREAD: Crumble two portions (1½ ounces each) Roquefort. Add one-half teaspoon paprika, two teaspoons lemon juice, and enough catsup to make the mixture spreadable. Work with a fork or spoon until smooth. Spread on bread, toast, or crackers to make canapes.

ROQUEFORT BALLS: For twelve small balls beat together one-quarter pound Roquefort, three tablespoons grated American cheese, one-quarter teaspoon paprika, one tablespoon soft butter, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, and two teaspoons chili sauce. Form into small balls and chill in refrigerator until hard. Serve with crackers or as an accompaniment to salad.

STUFFING FOR CELERY: Roquefort alone, Roquefort and cream cheese, or Roquefort mixed with finely chopped crisp bacon and chopped sweet pickle.

ROQUEFORT CHEESE AS DESSERT.

Now to swing to desserts. Try serving the fruit and cheese in this way: Stuff preserved kumquats with Roquefort, fill halves of fresh or canned pears with softened Roquefort and cream cheese topped with a dab of currant jelly, stuff fresh or preserved figs with cream cheese and Roquefort blended. Several types of fruit stuffed with cheese may be served on a tray and the guest allowed to help himself, or individual portions may be served.

Frozen Roquefort Salad.

(Serves six.)

4 ounces crumbled Roquefort cheese
2 tablespoons cream cheese
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 tablespoon finely minced chives or onion
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 cup finely shredded cabbage

Blend Roquefort and cream cheese with vinegar and chives. Add paprika and fold in whipped cream and cabbage. Freeze in refrigerator tray or pack in ice and salt for four hours. Serve in squares on lettuce topped with mayonnaise.

To cut chives use a pair of scissors.

Use Roquefort mayonnaise on a salad which doesn't contain cheese. It wouldn't do very well for the salad just given.

Roquefort Mayonnaise.

1 one and one-half ounce portion Roquefort cheese
2 teaspoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon finely chopped pimiento

Mix ingredients until blended and smooth.

The New Shoes Are Product of Fashion Genius

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Once in a season some genius presents a new idea that causes great excitement and a rush of shoppers. Climbing right out on the end of a limb, we unhesitatingly recommend some new footwear. Really beautiful pumps and tie oxfords have been exquisitely fashioned for dress parade occasions. Both soft suede and shiny patent lether are featured. But the newness comes in the cut out pattern that achieves all the distinction.

If you've ever craved dress parade pumps in either suede or patent leather, pumps beautiful enough to accent an afternoon costume of luxurious dull crêpe or one of the new favorites of heavy moiré, these are the answer. Except for the small panel at the back of the shoes, the entire affair is a cut-out design resembling eyelet embroidery of the heavier patterns. The designs are lacy and just open enough and toes are covered. The high heels are flattering and slender.

Tie oxfords as French as Zaza have high, slender heels and the same effective lacy cutout work. These recapture the almost forgotten smartness of a superlatively fashioned high heeled tie oxford. Dress parade tie oxfords such as these go with all the newest suits in soft woolens, luxurious surah silks and the moiré suits scheduled for late spring. Choose from deep dark blues or sooty blacks.

New Idea in Cotton Frocks

FROCK IN JUNIOR SIZES.

Here is a definitly new idea in cotton frocks. The belt is cut in a shape resembling the corselet waistline. The neckline may be square and collarless, or high, round, and with a shirtwaist collar. The shoulder is yoked, the bodice shirred into left fullness. The sleeves, puffed at the shoulders, may be long or short. A harmonizing apron, for which the pattern provides, is attached by a single buttonhole to the waist of the dress. It ties in back and stays in place. Don it for hostessing, remove it for social occasions.

Style No. 3256 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19 years. Size 15 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material, with 1¾ yards of 35 inch material for the apron and 3 yards of braid for the collarless dress.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Lanny Ross Advises Fidgety Women to Relax, Retain Charm

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"The advertisments leave nary a thing about women to the imagination," said a man to us recently. "We know all!"

Which may be the reason they have become experts on every beauty angle pertaining to the fair sex; to the components that go into the making of a charming femme; and perhaps, the reason why the handsome singing star, Lanny Ross, can put his finger on what's wrong with some of our otherwise charming dears.

Says Lanny:

"Women have yet to master the art of sitting still—or standing quietly. There's something soothing about a woman who is absolutely relaxed, yet few women manage the state of pleasing calm and poise. After dinner, they'll flick the ashes off their cigarets, fidget in their handbags for a lipstick, brush imaginary crums from their laps, or if they manage to sit quietly enough, their eyes are caught by something happening at the other end of the room. Few women manage that look of absolute repose and undivided attention which is so necessary to charm."

So, there you have it. What is your devastating little habit, gesture, movement, or inattention? Many of us have given ourselves over to habit in these distracting little specialties, which could well be dispensed with.

"Have you noticed," Mr. Ross asks, "how often women look at their fingernails? They look at the polish shade and nail formation as though they were phenomena peculiarly their own. They begin their concentration on a familiar object just when the conversation is becoming most interesting." Nervousness? No, quoth our woman observer, just habit which could be broken quickly.

Our friend of song thinks it would be neater if women would attend to all the little details of appearance and proceed to forget themselves. Get a full length view of yourself in the mirror, adjust hat and accessories, and then dismiss the qualms.

"Don't bother remarking on the funny hat on the woman to your left, or the handsome man at the other end of the room. Give your attention to your companion and see how your charm rating jumps up," concludes the star.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Usually when a declarer is faced with a two way finesse and there has been no adverse bidding upon which to base a choice he may as well "toss a coin," either literally or mentally. But sometimes his selection is virtually dictated for him by the following consideration: If he takes the finesse one way and loses he will go down only one trick, whereas if he elects to try it the other way and fails he will go down two or three tricks. Obviously, under such conditions, the safer plan is per se the better plan. Note today's hand:

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	1 heart	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

It will be noted that South "reversed the bidding" by responding first with hearts and later with the higher ranking spade suit. This type of bidding is used to indicate a strong hand, but I call attention to the fact that it does not have as great significance when used by the responder as when used by the opening bidder. In this case South's holding was "right on the line"; that is, it is doubtful whether he should have reversed even as the responder. It would have been more conservative and, perhaps, more accurate if he had first answered with one spade and later had shown his hearts in nonreverse order. However, he had a good playing hand and I am not inclined to criticize his actual sequence of responses. The final contract was, of course, correct, although it would have been defeated if one card, the diamond king, had been held by the "wrong" defender.

West opened the club ten as the safest lead he could find. Declarer won, but he did not make the mistake of trying to knock out the adverse trumps. He had more urgent work to perform. In sight were two club losers, one heart, and at least one spade. Nothing could be done about the heart or spade losers, but it was vital to salvage [if possible] at least one club loser. To that end declarer led his singleton diamond to dummy's ace and played the queen through east. As it happened East quickly ducked, but declarer threw off a club, having nothing to lose by that play. [If East had covered the diamond queen with the king declarer, of course, would have ruffed and returned to the spade ace to discard a club on the diamond jack.]

After having rid himself of one club loser declarer's prospects became much brighter. He still deferred drawing trumps because the spade break had not yet been investigated. He led low to the spade ace, and back to his king, then played a third round. It will be noted that this play would have been necessary if the spades had broken badly; that is, declarer would have needed the high trump in dummy for the safe ruffing of his fourth spade. The spade suit breaking three-three, declarer's fourth spade became good and did not have to be ruffed away. West returned a club, which East won, but declarer ruffed the next club lead. The queen of hearts lost to West's ace and now a diamond was returned. Again declarer ruffed. The outstanding trumps were picked up and the fourth spade was cashed for the fulfilling trick.

It will be noted that declarer had a two way diamond finesse. He could have led up to dummy and played the queen. If it held he could discard a club on the diamond ace and, in that way, virtually assure his contract. But the point was that this would involve the risk of losing a diamond trick in addition to two club tricks. In the choice of plays actually taken declarer at least could be sure that he would not lose his diamond ace, and since both diamond finesses had an equal chance of succeeding it would have been very foolish to have chosen the one that would be more expensive if it failed.

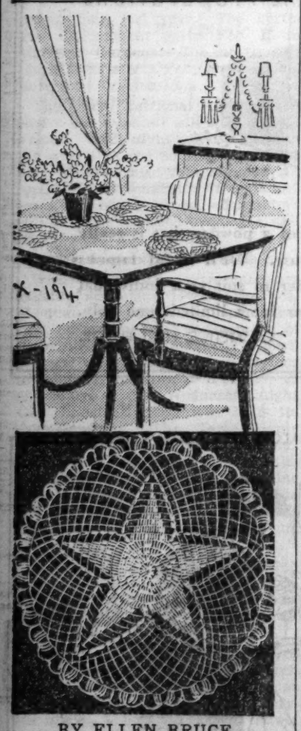
Circular Doily in Crochet Uses the Star Motif



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Star designs are as well known in crochet patterns as they are in quilt designs, and they are extremely simple to create. The circular doily is crocheted in the star design and is large enough for a luncheon plate. The fine mesh pattern affords a lacy effect which offsets the star motif.

For instructions for crocheting the circular medallion in the star motif, No. X-194, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

A refreshing little memory of the slow-paced past came back to us the other day when we received an inquiry about soap leaves, those paper thin leaves in a flat booklet which were once carried in the purse of many a fastidious woman. In those days the soaps one encountered casually away from home were of something less than good quality, and women who traveled or who were particularly fussy always toted their soap leaves.

There were powder leaves, too—also paper thin sheets coated with face powder which could be used to remove the shine with delicate inconspicuousness. They had another great advantage over the powder puff of today; they were sanitary. A once used powder leaf was never used again.

Tracking down these trifles of another era for our inquiring reader, we find that there is still a demand for them and that they are still available. A small number of dainty women are faithful to them. If you've been looking for them we know where you can find them.

Nearly 200 bouts will be required to decide the novice and open division qualifiers in the south side Golden Gloves tournament which opens tomorrow night in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. The tournament will continue on Wednesday and Thursday of this week and three days next week, the champions being determined a week from Thursday evening.

All bouts will be held in one ring and it is estimated that tomorrow night's inaugural program will consist of thirty-four fights. The show will start at 7:30 p. m. and the boxers will report for physical examinations between 4:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Pick West Side Team Thursday.

The west side champions will be determined Thursday evening. Not only will eight boxers be named to compete in the Tournament of Champions, which opens Feb. 27 in Chicago Stadium, but eight novice boxers will win gold qualifying medals and the right to enter the semi-finals of the Chicago novice tournament, which will be held Feb. 28 in conjunction with the Tournament of Champions.

The last preliminary physical examination will be held Friday night in Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street. More than 650 letters will be mailed today and tomorrow to boys who have sent in entry blanks. Northwest Meet Feb. 15.

All of these boxers will be assigned either to the northwest sectional or the north sectional tournament. With these boxers both tournaments are expected to be much larger than last year. The northwest tournament opens Feb. 15 in Marigold Gardens. The north side tournament starts Feb. 20 in Loyola university gymnasium.

The five sectional tournament shows this week all will start at 7:30 o'clock. Each night's bouts on both the west side and south side will be held in one ring. Admission at all sectional tournaments is 75 cents and seats are not reserved. Spectators will be admitted each evening a half hour before the first bout.

Six Centers Name Teams.

While the Chicago tournaments are steadily advancing toward the goal of qualifying thirty-two open division boxers for the Tournament of Champions, six additional out of town centers will name their champions to compete in Chicago Feb. 27, 28 and March 1. On Wednesday night the Cincinnati Post will hold its championships. The Terre Haute Tribune Star, the Vincennes, Ind., Sun Commercial, and the Springfield, Ill., State Register will determine their champions Thursday night. The Indianapolis Times and the Kansas City Star will hold their title bouts Friday night.

Thirty-eight more championship teams remain to be named to complete the list of more than 400 boxers eligible for the Tournament of Champions.

America Sings.

The glory of the sunlight,
The beauty of the moon,
They're subjects of our music,
Of each and every tune.

We sing about the flowers,
The birds, and young romance,
And songs about our loved ones
Just want to make us dance.

Our dreams and our ambitions,
Our hopes and loves and cares
Are glorified in music—
But is there one who dares

To sing of worn out stockings,
Of slushy snow and hats,
Of HIS toupee or HER false teeth,
Of neighbors' loud-mouthed brats?

Who'll hum a tune of sickness,
Of "charming" little mice,
Instead of moonlight spooning
And wedding bells and rice?

Let's have a rest from romance,
From songs of nature, too;
Variety is welcome,
So let's try something new.

La Crosse, Wis., Feb. 5.—[Special.]—Ken Bartholomew of Minneapolis won the national outdoor skating title this afternoon with 100 points. Leo Freisinger of Chicago was second with 90 points, and Eddie Schroeder of Chicago third with 50.

Scoring Stars Meet in Loyola, De Paul Game

When Loyola and De Paul meet Wednesday evening in the Chicago Stadium in the annual basketball game conducted by the Catholic Youth organization, five of the players who took part in the double overtime battle of 1937 will be making their farewell appearances in the intracity feud.

They are Wibs Kautz, Mike Novak, Bill O'Brien, and George Hogan of Loyola and Bob Neu, De Paul's scoring star. Kautz and Neu will be the targets Wednesday night, each holding his respective school's scoring records. Kautz, who has smashed all of the Loyola marks formerly held by Charles [Feed] Murphy, has made 106 field goals and twenty-eight free throws for a total of 240 points in the fourteen games the Ramblers have won this season.

Neu Finds the Range.

Neu, who was held to five points by Butler in Friday night's doubleheader in the Madison street armory, got the range again against Toledo Saturday, collecting fifteen points. Bob set a mark of 250 points last season, and will be the Blue Demons' chief hope against Loyola Wednesday. De Paul would consider a victory over the Ramblers more than enough compensation for the five games it has lost in thirteen games this season.

The combination of the speedy Kautz and the 6 foot 9 inch Novak has proved to be one of the greatest scoring twosomes in the country this season. Novak also uses his height to advantage defensively, his reach enabling him to bat away many potential enemy baskets.

Preps to Open Show.

The preliminary game Wednesday will bring together Mount Carmel High school of the south side and St. Philip's of the west side. Mount Carmel has won the St. George holiday tournament for the last two years. The south siders have lost only three out of seventeen games, while St. Philip has been defeated once in twelve starts.

War or No War, China Prepares for Olympics

CHUNKING, China, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Despite wartime disorganization of institutions sponsoring athletics, China's Amateur Athletic federation today named a committee, including C. T. Wang, former ambassador to Washington, to prepare for China's participation in the Olympics next year.

INDIANA PERILS OHIO STATE LEAD IN BIG TEN RACE

Ohio State, which moved into first place in the Western conference basketball race Saturday night, must defend its position against the rising threat of the Indiana quintet tonight in Bloomington. The Hoosiers, who took over second place in the standing as the Buckeyes defeated Minnesota Saturday, 31 to 30, can take the lead by winning from Ohio.

Illinois, which must take the floor without its captain, Tom Nisbet, ruled ineligible last week because of scholastic shortcomings, can add further complications to one of the closest Big Ten races in recent years with a victory over Iowa tonight in Champaign. The Illini are counting on Henry Sachs, a capable guard, who has become eligible by completing a year of residence, to bolster their defense. Sachs is from Wells High school, Chicago.

Gophers Are Idle.

A victory for Illinois would give it a five and two rating, the same as Minnesota's, and a tie for second place with Ohio State and the Gophers, if Indiana wins. The Gophers have no conference competition this week.

Tonight's other conference contest takes Wisconsin, which is tied with Northwestern for fifth place in the standing, to Lafayette for a duel with Purdue. The Boilermakers, last year's champions, have won only once in three conference starts and are in ninth place, next to the tail end Chicago quintet.

Three of the conference's four highest scorers will be in action in the Illinois-Iowa game. Pick Dehner and Bill Hapac are second and third with 74 and 71 points, and Capt. Ben Stephens of the Hawkeyes, after setting the pace, missed a game by illness and dropped to fourth place with 56 points.

Hull and Baker at Forwards.

Indiana has had no Big Ten competition since the Purdue game Jan. 16. The Buckeyes have maintained their speed and competitive spirit by playing three Big Ten games during that time. Ohio State defeated the Hoosiers, 45 to 38, in Indiana's first game of the season.

Ohio State likely will start Capt. Jim Hull and Dick Baker, forwards; John Schick at center, and Bob Lynch and Dick Boughner, guards.

Indiana's lineup probably will be Bob Dro and Paul Armstrong, forwards; Bill Menke, center, and Capt. Ernest Andres and Marvin Huffman guards.

Michigan Ring Inquiry Urged by Legislator

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 5.—(AP)—State Representative John F. Hamilton, Detroit Democrat, criticizing a fight between Tony Galento and Natie Brown in Detroit Friday, said tonight he would ask the Michigan legislature to investigate professional boxing in the state and the affairs of the state athletic board of control.

Hamilton already has filed a resolution in the house of representatives asking an inquiry into the fistic career of Jimmy Adamick, young Midland, Mich., heavyweight, to determine whether "he had been sacrificed by gamblers."

The legislator said he hoped to extend the scope of this investigation to include all phases of professional boxing within the state. The original resolution has been sent to the house resolutions committee.

Brown Barred.

Yesterday Frank MacDonell, chairman of the state athletic board of control, announced that Brown has been barred from further appearances in Michigan rings as a result of his showing against Galento. Brown went to the canvas ten times before being counted out in the fourth round. Galento, MacDonell said, will have to defeat an outstanding heavyweight outside of Michigan before being allowed to fight here again, and then he will be permitted to meet only an outstanding heavyweight.

"MacDonell was lax in that he did not bar Promoter Jack Kearns also," Hamilton declared. "Kearns is under suspension by the National Boxing association."

Hamilton said he also wanted to learn why Michigan withdrew from the National Boxing association last year rather than concur in the suspension by the Illinois boxing commission of Kearns, Adamick, James Brady, and Thomas Walsh, who were associated in the management of Adamick. The ban was ordered by the N. B. A. after Adamick won a knockout victory over Jack Trammell of Youngstown, O., in Chicago. Trammell and his manager, James Buchanan, also were suspended.

Adamick Injured in Knockout.

Hamilton said he had plenty of witnesses ready to testify in a probe of Adamick's career, which ended abruptly when he was knocked out by Roscoe Toles, Detroit Negro, here last fall. Adamick suffered injuries from which he has not yet recovered.

Hamilton's original resolution said it was rumored that persons fixed fights in order to enhance Adamick's reputation and that he was allowed to meet Toles while physically unfit.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Boston Bruins are just about the fanciest team in the National Hocky league this season, if you take them on their record against the Blackhawks. They proved it again last night, for the fifth time in five meetings, by dealing the Hawks a 3 to 0 defeat before a crowd of 15,768 in the Stadium.

Not only was it the Stanley cup holders' fifth loss to the league leaders, but also the seventh time the Hawks have been blanked in the current campaign. Three of those shutouts have been assessed against them by Frankie Brimsek, the Bruins' goal keeping prodigy, who now has a record of eight scoreless performances in his first year in the big league.

Mother Enjoys the Show.

Mrs. John Brimsek Sr. of Eveleth, Minn., was the most pleased guest in the house last night, for Frankie is her son. She sat with Mrs. Ann Starkovich, mother of Mike Karakas, the Hawks' goalie, back of the Chicago bench. With them was Clifford Thompson, coach of the two goalies in their prep school days in Eveleth. They were sent to Chicago through a subscription fund taken up by the Eveleth Clarion.

The Bruins left little doubt about their superiority, dominating the action so completely as to make the Hawks look almost futile at times, although the Chicagoans could not be censured for lack of trying. They were simply up against the most impregnable defense in the league, and if young Brimsek takes the Vezina trophy for goal tending this year, he can give thanks a plenty to Ed Shore, Jack Portland, Jack Crawford, and Jack Shewchuk.

Fall to Sixth Place.

The defeat dropped the Hawks back to sixth place, a game back of the Detroit Red Wings, who lambasted the New York Americans last evening. The Hawks play the Americans in New York tomorrow night and then return to the Stadium to meet the Red Wings Thursday night.

The Bruins last night accounted for one goal in each of the three periods. The first was scored shortly after Joffre Desilets and Gordon Pettinger had finished serving a joint sentence for slashing. Shore took the puck down, lured the Chicago defense to one side and passed to Bill Cowley, who swung sharply to the left and batted the puck past the helpless Karakas. The time was 14:57. Another slashing penalty against Desilets gave the Bruins another opportunity in the first period, but they could not realize any profit during his absence.

Frank Stands His Ground.

None in the crowd ever will understand how Brimsek held off Russ Blinco and Earl Robinson when they rushed in on him early in the second period, but the fact remains that he did at a time when they appeared to have him hopelessly beaten. The Bruins collected their second goal while they were short handed. Shewchuk was sent off for tripping Gottselig. While he was still in the box, Cooney Wieland kept poke checking the puck into Chicago territory, eventually passing to Pettinger, who came up to beat Karakas in 6:46.

Bobby Bauer made it 3 to 0 in the second minute of the final period, splitting the Hawk defense to score unassisted in 1:54.

RED WINGS ROUT AMERICANS, 7-3, AS ROOKIE STARS

Detroit Gets Five Goals in First Period.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Five goals in the opening period, three of them by Rookie Center Gus Giesebrecht, enabled the Detroit Red Wings to conquer the New York Americans, 7 to 3, in a National Hocky league contest tonight. Approximately 6,000 persons saw the Wings play their best hocky of the season as they decided the issue in the first twenty minutes.

After taking a commanding lead, Detroit was content to play defensive hocky and attempt to catch the Americans with four or five men up the ice. The strategy produced two more goals in the final period, which was extended to almost twenty-five minutes when the second period had to be cut short because of a temporary failure of the lighting system in Olympia stadium.

Detroit went ahead to stay less than seven minutes after the opening whistle and near the close of the first period scored three times in a minute and fifty seconds. The Americans got the only goal of the second period and each team scored twice in the final one. Lineups:

RANGERS, 5; LEAFS, 5

New York, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs overcame a two goal lead in the third period tonight to gain a 5 to 5 tie with the New York Rangers in a National Hocky league game before a crowd of 13,675.

Bryan Hextall scored two goals to put the Rangers ahead in the first period, but a pair by Red Horner and one from Gus Marker's stick put the Leafs in front. Phil Watson tied it late in the second and in the seventh minute of the third period Smith broke away and when Bucko McDonald threw his stick and tripped the Ranger, an automatic goal was awarded.

Less than a minute later Smith broke away again and scored another. With the game apparently won, the Rangers slackened off, and Doc Romnes and Syl Apps scored to produce the tie. Lineups:

Andersen Wins U. S. Ski Title by Big Margin

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Reidar Andersen, ski jumping champion of his native Norway, added the United States title to his collection today.

Andersen leaped to first place in the tournament against a field that included the United States' top riders. His jumps of 193 and 197 feet were the longest of the day, and gave him the title by a wide margin.

Andersen's almost perfect form in addition to his long jumps gave him a point total of 234.45 in class A, compared with 226 points by Alf Engen, Sun Valley, Idaho, the runner-up. Eugene Wilson of Coleraine, Minn., placed third with 223.9, and Sverre Fredheim of St. Paul was fourth with 221.45.

Ulland Drops to Fifth Place.

Sig Ulland of Lake Tahoe, Cal., the defending champion, finished fifth with a 220.5 total, the result of leaps of 177 and 182 feet. Engen had jumps of 188 and 189 feet.

An accident prevented Paul Bietila of Madison, Wis., 1938 runner-up and present national collegiate champion, from competing in the A division. Bietila, in a practice leap in the morning, fell and suffered two fractured ribs, a broken jaw and other injuries. He was taken to a hospital.

Soler Wins Class B Title.

St. Paul won three of the four national championships awarded at the tournament when Len Soler took the class B division crown. In Saturday's opening competition Gjardar Iverson of St. Paul won the senior crown, and Gene Lewis took the title in class C, or boy's division. The leading point winners:

CALLS KNOCKOUT BOYS SISSIES; HE WENT 77 ROUNDS

Nameoki, Ill., Feb 5.—(AP)—Joe Louis and Tony Galento are sissies with their quick knockouts and long rests, if you ask Old Timer Harry Sharpe. He ought to know a little about longer range bouts—46 years ago today he knocked out Frank Crosby after 77 rounds in rain, snow, and sleet.

That was men's sport, he insisted, remembering that besides the ten days under a doctor's care he spent six months in jail and paid a $500 fine for the fight. The fight began about 4 o'clock that afternoon. At 9:18, by the light of torches borrowed from an election campaign party, Sharpe knocked Crosby out. Between each round the fighters, stripped to the waist, huddled under heavy blankets in the below-zero weather. They wore three ounce gloves, with no bandages.

The purse was $1,000—half contributed by each man's own backers. The grand jury indicted both under Illinois' old anti-prizefighting law, before they were recovered from their terrific punishment. Sharpe pleaded guilty on Dec. 4, 1893, and Crosby entered a similar plea Dec. 12. In addition to the sentences the two fighters received, other principals were fined $200 and given three months in jail.

Sharpe said he would like to see Crosby, whose whereabouts he doesn't know, and have him help tear to pieces Joe Louis' two minute victory over John Henry Lewis, and Tony Galento's ten minute kayo handed Natie Brown.

"Those fellows have it soft," he snorted.

VOPEL'S WRIST IS ON THE MEND; READY FOR RACE

Heinz Vopel, German six day bicycle rider, who was forced out of the current Cleveland race when he suffered a fracture of his left wrist, now is in New York for medical attention. He will be in Chicago to ride in the forty-first international race which starts in the Stadium Sunday night.

It is expected that Vopel's wrist still will be in a cast when he rides in Chicago, but the cast will be small and it will offer no inconvenience. Vopel will do light training in New York so his legs will be in condition when he comes to Chicago.

Overlin and Quaill Meet at Marigold

Al Quaill of Pittsburgh, will make his Chicago debut in a ten round rematch with Ken Overlin tonight in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, with hopes of avenging three previous defeats at the hands of the Decatur dancing master.

Quaill, who is 24 years old, was not in a very cheerful mood yesterday as he recounted his inability to overtake the speedy Overlin in the thirty rounds.

"But he's slowed up since our last meeting," Al said, as he finished training. "I think I'm getting a swell opportunity to get even."

The feud began in Pittsburgh Oct. 14, 1935. Quaill came so close to winning that he met Overlin in a return bout the following Dec. 9, also in Pittsburgh. After this second failure the Irish youth tried once again in Johnstown Aug. 20, 1936. Now, with added experience, Quaill is confident his time has arrived at long last.

The Overlin setbacks are half of six Al has suffered during a five year campaign. He has engaged in forty-two contests, winning thirty-four and scoring two draws. In his last engagement Quaill lost a decision to Gene Buffalo in Philadelphia last month. Previously he had beaten Freddy Linn in Pittsburgh in December. Supporting matches:

Verle Davis vs. George Nelson [5], 141.

George Nyberg vs. Johnny Williams [4], 150.

Johnny Rock vs. Al Schiarato [4], 147.

Marion Mosley vs. Mike Adler [4], heavyweights.

Jim McMillen will wrestle Olaf Olson in tonight's mat headliner in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Al Williams faces Misteree Mann, Chin Lee tackles Rudy Kay, Jack Conley meets Babe Kasaboski, and Richard Hewitt encounters Robert Jesson. . . . Norman Hughes, Danville, Ill., middleweight, and Vernel Williams, Gary, will meet in the windup contest of five rounds in the amateur boxing show in Coulon's gymnasium, 1154 East 63d street, tonight. . . . After he wrestles in Detroit tonight Wladyslaw Talun will return for a match with Angelo Lorenzo in Cicero stadium tomorrow, Co-Promoters Billy Cepak and Paul Paloski said yesterday.

Holman Williams, welterweight stablemate of Joe Louis, boxes Vintro Martinelli in Scranton, Pa., tomorrow.

ANYWAY, WANER SHOULD KNOW HE LOST THIS MATCH

Lakeland, Fla., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Wesley Ferrell of the New York Yankees defeated Paul Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, defending champion, on the thirty-eighth hole of their final battle here today for the annual baseball players' title.

Fact is, he defeated the elder of the Waner boys twice.

According to the rules at the Cleveland Heights course, where the dizzy duel unfolded, Ferrell was one up at the end of the regulation thirty-six holes, but Waner insisted for thirty minutes that the match was square.

Ferrell finally agreed to flip a coin to see whether they would play extra holes, and Waner called it right. So off they went again with a gallery of about a thousand whooping it up behind them. On the thirty-eighth hole, a short one, the left handed Waner three-putted from twenty feet to make his defeat official.

Neither shot the golf he had in previous rounds. Each had a 75 on the morning eighteen, but Ferrell went to lunch 3 up. On the second eighteen Ferrell shot an 83 and Waner an 84.

C. Y. O. Forward Scores 57 Points to Break Record

Mack Mieinicki, forward for the Five Holy Martyrs lightweight team, compiled the remarkable total of 57 points yesterday to break the Catholic Youth association's single game scoring record of 44 points, set last week by Joe Tunney of Holy Cross.

Mieinicki made 26 field goals and five free throws as his team defeated Our Lady of Mercy Mission, 80 to 27, in a C. Y. O. league game in St. Agatha's gymnasium. The victory enabled undefeated Five Holy Martyrs to retain its lead with five consecutive victories.

Mieinicki, 22 year old Polish boy, never played basketball until he joined the C. Y. O. league upon his graduation from Lindblom High in 1934.

St. Elizabeth's heavyweight team, defending champion, suffered its first defeat, 36 to 22, by Sacred Heart [19th street]. St. Sylvester's lights set a new team record by beating Holy Rosary, 83 to 17. Scores:

ARMY AND NAVY IN MARKET FOR MORE AVIATORS

Short Term Commissions May Be Offered.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 5.—[Special.]—The army and navy high commands are considering adoption of short term commissions for flying officers to give the air corps of both services sufficient commissioned pilots to fly the new planes of the air expansion program.

As new planes are going to be made available to both services in large numbers, officers foresee a shortage of highly efficient pilots. They also believe it will be impossible to train enough regularly commissioned flyers within the next ten or fifteen years to take over the augmented air forces.

May Adopt British Plan.

The navy high command is considering adoption of the British short term commission to compete for young men with the army, which is planning to offer reserve commissions with active service status for an indefinite period. The navy competition is expected to force the army to fix the term of the active service commissions in order to attract young men who want more security than the indefinite active service status.

Under the plan being formulated by the navy, young unmarried men between the ages of 18 and 23, who possess high physical and educational standards and a marked aptitude for flying, would be commissioned for limited service.

The British system grants commissions for seven years, the first two of which are devoted to flight and naval training. At the end of the seven year period the temporary commission holders are permitted to volunteer for an eight year tour of duty. If accepted, they continue in service.

If they do not volunteer or are refused the additional tour of duty, they are placed on an emergency list and required to keep up flight practice and undergo active training for two weeks each year or one month every other year for eight years.

Start as Flight Ensigns.

At the end of the eight year period both those who remained in the service and those on the emergency list are placed on the retired list.

The British system provides for a regular promotion system based on aptitude, which begins with the rank of midshipman and goes through the grades to commander.

The navy department is considering adaptation of the British system with changes in the term of service and other conditions to meet the American naval pattern. However, the commission system would be similar to the British, ranging from flight ensign to flight lieutenant commander.

The navy would keep the men with limited commissions until they have reached the age of 40 or 45 years, at which time they would be retired or discharged with a bonus payment.

Aim at 2,000 Reserve Pilots.

The navy at present gets its pilots both from the Naval academy at Annapolis and from civilian life. The latter are not commissioned in the navy, however, but after qualification at the Pensacola, Fla., flying school, are given three years active duty as aviator cadets and are then returned to civil life and commissioned in the naval reserve.

The army plans to give reserve commissions to graduates of special flying training schools. It is expected that about 2,000 reserve pilots will be on active duty with the army at all times. They may be sent to civil life at any time.

Because the navy is planning to make the tour of a "flight officers' corps" more definite, high army officials said today the army might be forced to follow suit if it did not want to let the cream of the pilot crop go to the navy.

Hero of Fire

Robert St. Pierre shows how he helped awaken 70 tenants in apartment house fire.

The heroism of four children, who raced through a four story sixteen apartment building early yesterday awakening tenants following discovery of a fire, enabled seventy persons to escape safely.

The children are Robert St. Pierre, 12 years old; Richard Whittington, 7; Charles Simms Jr., 12, and his sister, Jean, 13. Robert was awakened by the smoke in the building at 1514-16 East 62d street. He roused his aunt, Mrs. Margaret Whittington, with whom he lives on the third floor. Then with his cousin and the Simms youngsters, children of Mrs. Charles Simms, the building manager, they ran through the corridors knocking on doors.

Five of the building's occupants were assisted to the street by firemen. Three canaries and two pet cats were saved by their owners, but two pigeons perished. The blaze originated in the boiler room.

OTTO REICH DIES; A FOREST PARK MAYORAL ENTRY

Otto Reich, one of four candidates for mayor of Forest Park in the primary to be held Feb. 28, died in the Oak Park hospital yesterday. He was 49 years old and lived at 422 Circle avenue. He was taken to the hospital Thursday.

Otto Reich.

Reich was the leading taxpayer in Proviso township. A quarter of a century ago he founded the monument company bearing his name. Stone dust inhaled at work in his younger years impaired his health.

He was well known in the suburb. He served terms as village treasurer and commissioner of finance. Surviving him are his widow, Augusta; a son, Vernon, and two daughters, Vivian and Veronica. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday in St. John's Lutheran church.

A. E. OSTRANDER OF FOUNDRY CO. ENDS OWN LIFE

New York, Feb. 5.—[Special.]—Allen E. Ostrander, assistant vice president of the American Car and Foundry company, was found dead today in a hotel room across the street from his town apartment in East Forty-ninth street. Police said he had hanged himself.

He left two notes, one addressed to his wife, and the other to Charles J. Hardy, president of the American Car and Foundry company. Their contents were not disclosed.

An engineer by profession, Mr. Ostrander, who was 61 years old, attended Yale university. His first business connection was with the New York, New Haven, and Hartford railroad, after which he was associated with Cornelius Vanderbilt in the designing of locomotive boilers.

JESSE R. GRANT, EX-PRESIDENT'S NEPHEW, DIES

Wilmette Recluse, 74, Is Exposure Victim.

Jesse Root Grant, a nephew of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, former President of the United States, died yesterday in the County hospital at the age of 74 years. His death was caused by exposure.

His home was at 1327 Washington avenue, in Wilmette. There he lived with his only son, Ulysses S. Grant, 47 years old, in eight rooms almost barren of furniture. The son said Grant had spent all of his time in the basement in recent weeks. He was unable to mount the stairs because of painful swellings in his legs.

Found on Floor in Coma.

Grant was found in a coma on the basement floor Saturday morning. The furnace fire had been out for hours. The house was cold. There was no coal in the bin. Four cats cried for food in the upper rooms. They were all that remained of the fourteen pets which caused neighbors to complain of the Grants in 1936. A $5 fine at the time brought Jesse Grant briefly into the news.

His father was Orvil Grant, a brother of Gen. Grant. Another son of Orvil, bearing the family name of Ulysses, lives in New York City. Last night he confirmed the relationship to the general.

There were no documents in the Grant home in Wilmette to indicate the connection. But there was a large pewter coffee urn in the kitchen, brightly polished and gleaming in its drab surroundings. It came from Gen. Grant's home in Galena, Ill., where the exposure victim was born.

Retired Rail Accountant.

Jesse Grant was a retired accountant. He worked for the Burlington railroad for 23 years and later for the North Western, retiring ten years ago. His son was a bank teller for several years until 1930, when he lost his job after he was injured in an accident. They lived frugally on a $9,000 legacy from an aunt, spreading it over the years.

Jesse Grant's wife, Gertrude, died in October, 1929. The family had lived in Wilmette for 15 years, yet their very existence was unknown to another branch in nearby Lake county. Prince Michael Cantacuzene is a son of Mrs. Julia Grant Cantacuzene, daughter of Gen. Grant. Reached at his home near Waukegan, Prince Michael said he had never heard of a nephew of the general living in Wilmette.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

PREDICT VAST UTILITY OUTLAY AS TVA YIELDS

Power Leaders Hail Willkie Deal.

New York, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Some leading executives today predicted a major improvement in business as a result of yesterday's amicable settlement of the six year fight between a large utility system and the Roosevelt administration over the Tennessee Valley authority.

Economists, financial leaders, and big business heads for years have said no substantial improvement in heavy industry would come unless and until privately owned utilities resumed expansion programs.

More and more this belief has been accepted in financial circles—that such spending is indispensable to recovery, and that recovery periods characterized by consumer business pickup without corresponding expansion of heavy industries would be short lived.

Recently, say these sources, many administration leaders have privately indicated acceptance of this principle.

Viewed as TVA Capitulation.

The TVA settlement with Wendell L. Willkie, president of Commonwealth and Southern corporation, was characterized by some utility executives here as "capitulation" on the part of the administration to the utilities.

[The TVA agreed to buy the Tennessee Electric Power company's electric properties for $78,600,000, plus other considerations raising the total to about $80,000,000. The company is a unit in the Commonwealth and Southern system.]

They called it a "capitulation" not only because the price reputedly was only $1,000,000 under Willkie's previous offer, comparing with TVA's offer last spring of $55,000,000, but also because of the principles accepted in the price jump.

In the agreement, they said, TVA inferentially recognized for the first time "equity" or common stock value in utility bookkeeping, investment in other than tangible properties, "going business" value—not represented by tangible assets—and the utilities' theory of deterioration, which was lower than that of the government.

Predicts Billion a Year Outlay.

The yielding by the TVA, these utility leaders said, is likely to launch the long pent up utility improvement programs.

Willkie himself was one of the most pessimistic of the executives only a fortnight ago, at which time he predicted 1939 utility spending would be less than last year. Now he is said to believe the settlement will stimulate not less than $1,000,000,000 of capital outlay a year for the next three or four years—more than double the 1938 year figure. Some other utility men are even more optimistic.

The importance of such an investment in heavy industry is that it has, in the opinion of these men, very broad indirect effects. For example, they said, it will stimulate employment and production in copper mines, cause new railroad freight cars to be built and operated, and will increase operations in plants which manufacture generating equipment.

Expenditures Cut in Depression

During the depression years, these authorities said, the utilities have spent no more than was absolutely necessary to take care of the curtailed business.

But these pleasant predictions today were accompanied by an "if," which could be paraphrased as follows:

"The TVA settlement will unloose spending and stimulate business generally if renewed quarreling between the administration and utilities does not break out, frightening investors."

The settlement caused varied reactions among members of congress in Washington, D. C. Senator Norris [Ind., Neb.], often called "the father of TVA," said the amount agreed to was "too much," and that the cost of six years of litigation should have been deducted from the price.

Dangles Cheap Rate Lure.

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 5.—(AP)—The Tennessee Valley authority dangled a lure of cheap electricity before Tennessee cities today as an inducement to participate in the purchase of electric properties of a Commonwealth and Southern corporation subsidiary for $78,600,000.

The TVA planned conferences, beginning tomorrow, with officials of cities to work out apportionments of the proposed purchase price for properties of the subsidiary, the Tennessee Electric Power company. The plan calls for the municipalities to buy distribution systems within their city limits and in adjacent areas and for TVA to take over generating and transmission facilities.

May Cost TVA 40 Millions.

Some TVA sources said the authority's share would be about $40,000,000.

Two hundred incorporated towns are served by the company and approximately 200 unincorporated communities, representing 150,000 customers in sixty-two counties.

Should any community decline to join the scheme it will continue to be served by the Tennessee Electric Power company at present rates, which are higher than the TVA rates.

With acquisition of the T. E. P.'s properties and market the controversial TVA "yardstick" of electric rates will get its first real test.

Predicts Rate Reductions.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Adoption of electric power rates "comparable to TVA yardstick rates" by utilities throughout the nation within five years was predicted here tonight by David E. Lilienthal, vice chairman of the Tennessee Valley authority.

Warns Export of Iron Perils Our War Might

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Emory E. Smith, dollar a year commissioner for the war industries board during the world war, charged today that the United States' chances in any possible new world outbreak were being virtually sabotaged by wholesale export of scrap iron.

In an open letter to the public he said: "The United States never has been and is not now independent in war materials. The United States could not enter into or maintain a major war for the lack of a sufficient supply of scrap iron."

America Crippled, He Says.

Smith contended that carrying on a war now virtually would be impossible financially because other countries could use scrap iron while the United States would have to use newly mined iron costing three or four times as much. Major war equipment, he said, therefore would cost several times as much as it would, for instance, in Japan.

Millions of tons of scrap iron have been sold abroad, he said, enabling other countries to build up their supplies at the expense of this country, which has thus made itself vulnerable despite its magnificent national defense position.

Demands Immediate Action.

Smith declared that he had become mad enough to reveal in what dire straits this country was at the conclusion of the world war. He urged organizations and individuals to demand immediate congressional action in barring exports of all metallic war material.

The elderly, gray haired president of an engineering and industrial chemistry firm here said that "just before the armistice the iron situation became so alarming that documents were prepared to commandeer all the iron and steel for war purposes.

"Anxiety became so great that transportation maps were devised tracing hourly movements of cars of scrap iron. Our mills were, at the time of the armistice, 12,000,000 tons behind on urgent war orders.

Iron Key to Peace.

"Scrap iron holds jointly with fuel oil and coal the powers of war or peace. At the armistice Germany, England, and Japan were bare of iron. The world war ended because scrap iron failed."

Smith, who was war commissioner for the American Iron and Steel institute [under the war industries board] during the war, said since the armistice scrap iron had been accumulated in the United States to a point of security, but that 12,000,000 tons have been exported in the last five years—7,500,000 to Japan.

"Without America's scrap iron there would have been no Japanese-China war and no bellicose European situation," he said.

Du Pont Sales Dip; Business Problem Told

New York, Feb. 5.—[Special.]—Net sales of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. and wholly owned subsidiaries in 1938 amounted to $235,409,426, according to the annual report issued today. The total represented a 17.69 per cent decline compared with net sales of $286,043,075 in 1937.

Lammot du Pont.

The figures are not wholly comparable, because of a change in the manner of conducting the tetraethyl lead business, Lammot du Pont, president, said in his report.

Excluding sales of tetraethyl lead to the Ethyl Gasoline corporation in 1937 and excluding in 1938 operating revenue under an agreement whereby du Pont operates the Ethyl gasoline plant, sales were about 17 per cent under 1937.

Prices Are Lower.

Of this, about 14 per cent was caused by a decrease in physical volume and about 3 per cent by lower selling prices.

"As never before," said du Pont, "the industrial structure of the nation needs enterprise and the constructive investment of venture capital, but such capital is hesitant because the prospective return is not worth the hazard. Issues of new corporate securities, excluding those for refunding purposes, are still three-fourths below the normal volume, despite rising production and sales.

"Under wise tax laws and carefully considered regulatory legislation idle capital would be released to rebuild obsolescent plants, establish new plants, and make possible lower costs to the consumer and thus a wider distribution of industry's benefits, particularly through increased employment."

Earnings Drop Sharply.

The report showed consolidated net income for 1938 was $50,190,827 after charges, compared with $88,031,943 in 1937. This confirmed preliminary figures issued a week ago.

At the end of 1938 about 47,000 employés, including 2,300 in construction work, were on the pay rolls of the company and controled companies. This was a decrease of about 10 per cent from the end of 1937. The average number of employed in 1938 was 47,400, a decrease of 18 per cent from the 1937 average, and total wages and salaries were $90,700,000, a decrease of 16 per cent.

The report discloses that du Pont himself received a salary of $150,000 in 1938.

INTEREST RATE ON RFC NOTES IS ⅞ PER CENT

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau yesterday announced the terms of the $300,000,000 of notes which will be offered today by the treasury in behalf of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The notes will be offered at 100¼ and accrued interest, and are designated ⅞ per cent notes of series R, dated Feb. 15, 1939, and maturing Jan. 15, 1942. They will not be subject to call for redemption prior to maturity. The interest at the ⅞ per cent annual rate will be payable on a semi-annual basis.

The notes will be issued only in bearer form with coupons attached, in denominations of $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, and $100,000.

New York state today will sell an issue of $100,000,000 in short term notes bearing the record low interest rate of 1-5th of 1 per cent. The notes will be dated Feb. 7 and will mature June 28. Proceeds will be used for current state expenses.

HOWARD AIRCRAFT'S STOCK TO BE OFFERED TODAY BY BROKERS

Public offering of 400,000 shares of common stock of the Howard Aircraft corporation of Chicago will be made today by Dempsey, Detmer & Co., Chicago, and Pistell, Wright & Co., Ltd., New York. The stock is priced at $3 a share. The proceeds will be used to expand the operations of the company, which is Chicago's only airplane builder.

Capitalization of the corporation consists only of common stock of $1 par value, of which 600,000 are authorized. Of 500,000 registered with the securities and exchange commission 100,000 shares are reserved against the exercise of purchase warants which it is proposed to issue. The rest constitutes the present offering.

The company was formed in December, 1936. It has manufactured on a limited scale three models of high wing monoplanes designed by the company's president, Ben O. Howard. Howard planes have been sold to private owners and to the inspection service of the civil aeronautics authority.

After the new financing makes expansion possible the corporation will build other types, including a cargo plane capable of carrying four tons.

WANTS TO REVAMP UNITED STATES STEEL.

Investors' Guide: I am a common stock holder in the United States Steel corporation and should like your advice on a plan I have in mind. I want to have all the corporation's preferred stock converted into common. The reason for this conversion would be to permit all stockholders to participate equally in U. S. Steel's earnings. I can see no good reason for payment at a yearly rate of $7 a share on 3,603,000 preferred shares in the last five years, while common holders have received only $1 a share.

It is easy to see that under my plan all stockholders would have received $2 a share in dividends each year since 1932. I plan a direct mail canvass of stockholders to solicit proxies for my proposal. How can I get a list of the stockholders?—R. W. L.

Answer: Under the laws of New Jersey, where United States Steel is incorporated, every corporation is required to keep a list of stockholders open for inspection by any shareholder. This must be kept at the main office, which for the steel corporation is New York City. You may obtain a list there of the 200,000-odd shareholders of U. S. Steel.

As for advice on your proposal to revamp the capital structure, we suggest that you examine some of the reasons why the company has issued two kinds of stock.

Your plan aims for an equal share in earnings by all stockholders. A capital structure with both preferred and common stocks aims to give the common stock holders a bigger slice than preferred owners in the prosperity of the company. On the other hand, it gives preferred holders a greater "margin of safety," so that the common share holders take the bigger risk.

Because the preferred stock has a "fixed charge" claim against earnings, it gives a leverage attraction to the common stock. For example, in 1929 U. S. Steel earned $21.19 a common share after paying preferred dividends, and in 1930 $9.12 a common share. You have described the opposite situation, from 1931 through 1936, when little or less than nothing was earned for the common, but the preferred got its dividends. This was leverage working in reverse.

The common has a greater speculative appeal—and carries a greater risk—because of this leverage. If the steel industry should strike a big boom your common would probably look better than it does now. If you don't want to speculate you may sell. Or you may solicit proxies for your plan. The annual meeting is April 3, at Hoboken, N. J.

Ask Insurance Firms to Help End Rail Ills

Washington, D. C., Feb. 5.—(AP)—A senate committee today called on life insurance companies to use their "superior position" in railroad reorganizations to help halt "the notorious recurrence of railroad failures."

The committee reported on one phase of an extensive investigation of railroad finances. It told the senate the insurance companies had a special responsibility to effectuate sound railroad reorganizations because of their huge financial stake in the carriers.

The committee reported on the eve of an investigation by the monopoly committee into insurance company investments, their management and size, and their influence upon capital markets. Hearings begin tomorrow.

Cites Stedman Committee.

The first witnesses will be Donald H. Davenport, special economic consultant, and Ernest Howe, chief financial adviser for the Securities and Exchange commission's study.

In its report the senate committee reviewed in detail the participation of the so-called Stedman bondholders committee, sponsored by a group of large insurance companies, in efforts to reorganize the Missouri Pacific railroad. These efforts, the committee said, were selected as typical of insurance company participation in railroad reorganizations.

Insurance companies represented on the Stedman committee were the Metropolitan, Prudential, New York Life, Northwestern Mutual, Equitable, and John Hancock.

Charges Concession to Bankers.

"Instead of following a direct course through the [Missouri Pacific] reorganization proceedings," said Chairman Wheeler [D., Mont.] in a statement summarizing the committee report, "the Stedman committee repeatedly made concessions to the investment bankers whose interests were different from those of bondholders.

"Even more damaging were its negotiations with Alleghany corporation, the holding company formerly in control. The life insurance committee entered a partnership with Alleghany corporation as against other classes of creditors and expressed a willingness under certain conditions to concede to Alleghany corporation a considerable measure of control of the reorganized company."

This willingness, Wheeler said, was evident despite knowledge by the insurance executives that "in the past Alleghany corporation had mismanaged the Missouri Pacific and abused its powers of control."

Wheeler Drafts Legislation.

Wheeler said the study showed "many weaknesses of life insurance committees in railroad reorganization proceedings."

It demonstrated, he added, need for legislation "not merely to offset such ineptitude as exists in the life insurance executives in railroad reorganizations but also to free them of many of the handicaps and obstacles that the existing reorganization statute places between them and doing a constructive job, handicaps of which they themselves have complained."

Wheeler said he had drafted legislation for this purpose.

Steel Production Rises to Highest Level of Year

Steel making last week rose 1.5 points to 53 per cent of potential ingot capacity, the magazine Steel reported yesterday. This rate is the highest this year and is 22 points above that for the same week last year. Sales of scrap contracted last week. Prices varied in a small range. The magazine's composite price for scrap rose 4 cents to $14.75. Buying of steel products continued at a slow pace, with consumers still cautious.

WALL STREET'S SPIRITS CLIMB; SO DO STOCKS

Utilities and Steels Week's Leaders.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 5.—The gloom that had recently enshrouded Wall street was blown away last week when the stock market rallied briskly. Advances in leading stocks ran from fractions to more than six points.

The most encouraging event of the week to traders was the speech of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler. For days before he spoke on Monday the market was influenced by fears that his words would precipitate another European crisis.

As it turned out, however, his talk was interpreted as conciliatory, and traders again turned toward buying stocks. Nearly all sections of the list were given a whirl, although most favored treatment went to the utilities, steels, and motors.

See Signs of Utility "Peace."

Power and light shares especially were in demand despite the fact that the Supreme court ruled on Monday in support of the Tennessee Valley authority's right to compete with private utilities. Financial circles held the opinion that the administration was anxious to end its long dispute with the utilities.

This reasoning received a measure of confirmation after the close on Saturday when it was announced that the government and the Commonwealth and Southern corporation had agreed on a price for the Tennessee properties of Commonwealth.

Strongest among the power shares during the week was Consolidated Edison, which rose 2½ points on the second best volume in the list.

Closes Near Week's Best.

The best sessions of the market were Monday and Tuesday, when the industrial averages shot up around six points. Wednesday saw the list slide a bit, but it came back Thursday, only to dip again on Friday. A slight rally Saturday brought the price table close to its best level of the week.

United States Steel, up 4⅝ points, topped the list in volume.
